Fight Over Sick Boy Opens Here

Today

Mr. Farley's Good Idea.
Embarrassing for England.
Some Plain English.
Keeping Out Buyers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CONGRATULATIONS to Postmaster General Farley, who wants to put letter postage back to two cents. The government has learned what business learned long ago, there is more money in a big bargain than in any kind of over-charging.

At the three-cent rate thousands of houses, including financial institutions, distribute letters and circulars by special messenger and find that they can do it for even less than two cents in many cases.

THE TRIAL of Englishmen, in Moscow, accused of sabotage, bribery and spying, proceeds under conditions difficult for the Englishmen. A young Russian engineer is alleged to have taken a bribe, and then gone to the police with full information. He said to the prosecuting attorney at the trial:

"Comrade Prosecutor, I am a Russian engineer. I do not take bribes."

One of the accused Englishmen called the judge "comrade," but was ordered to call him "citizen judge."

The situation, as described by the Associated Press, is painful for the British, who still maintain that confessions of the accused Englishmen were wrung from them by cruelty. To this Russia replies that not one of them made any such charge in court, although the opportunity was theirs.

YESTERDAY the Senate was considering the administration's farm program, called by those that do not like it "an inflation program." If interested in "plain English," compare Herbert Spencer's definition of evolution with extracts from the farm bill. You will award the prize for a clear style to Herbert Spencer. He defined evolution thus:

"Evolution is an integration of matter, and a concomitant dissipation of motion, during which the motion passes from an indefinite, incoherent homogeneity to a definite, coherent heterogeneity, and during which the retained motion undergoes a parallel transformation."

That is quoted from memory; excuse it, if inaccurate.

The plan to stabilize farmers' prices, quoted in the Congressional Record by Mr. "Broadan Wall," runs as follows:

"The price for each month may be conceived as represented by a small black ball, suspended above the line for its date, at the height of the average price for that month, and as far over from right to left as indicated by the supply for that month. There would necessarily be only one ball for each month.

"These balls, however, would all be very close to the demand surface, a little above it for those months when the actual price was higher than the price as shown by the correlation formula, and a little lower for the month when the actual price was a little below the estimated price. In general, however, it would be seen that the demand surface approximated the position that these prices occupy, as they were thus suspended through space and time."

SAMUEL UNTERMYER, well-known New York lawyer, suggests that it would be neither unreasonable nor unjust for Jewish business men, and others who object to race or religious discrimination, to refrain for the present from buying goods manufactured in Mr. Hitler's country.

The quick-acting Mr. Stalin has done more than suggest. When Mr. Hitler announced that "Christ, if living, would lead the Nazis against the Communists," Stalin shifted an order for 18,000 tons of high-grade steel from a German to a French plant, and it is a cash transaction.

In this country, important "buyers" in commercial institutions are Americans of the Jewish race, as are those that send them to Europe to buy. It is probable that they will not go to Germany, being advised that Jews are not wanted there.

WHEN MIKE DOLINSKI, owner of a Brooklyn delicatessen shop, faces St. Peter, he will surely hear the good saint say:

"Michael, pass right in and take a good seat."

Late at night a young man, producing a revolver, told Mike to "stick 'em up" and hand over his money. Mike seized the robber, who fainted in his arms, weak with hunger.

Instead of hitting him on the head, Mike Dolinski poured a glass of milk into his mouth, gave him more milk and was feeding him sandwiches when a policeman came in.

Victor Hugo wrote about his father, after a French victory, riding over a Spanish battlefield, giving water to dying Spaniards.

One fired a pistol point blank, but misfired. Hugo's father got down, gave him a drink.

IN VIRGINIA CITY, Nev., an old, abandoned hut was torn down by unemployed miners. One noticed what looked like gold, and sure enough it was gold, running $500 to the ton. That means millions, if the vein is big enough. The discoverers hope it is the old original "Comstock lode."

Seven hundred million dollars in precious metal was taken from the Comstock lode in the old days. But don't let that persuade you to leave a steady job, if you have one.

ORDER ASKED TO OPERATE; MOTHER OBJECTS

Juvenile Court Rule Sought in Dispute At Millvale

A parallel to the "better dead than blind" fight being waged by parents of 2-year-old Helen Vasco in Hastings, N. Y., reached Allegheny County Juvenile Court today.

Edwin M. Smith, chief agent of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, today said he had filed a petition in Juvenile Court seeking the return of William, 3-year-old son of Mrs. Helen Lesic, of 248 Arlington street, Millvale, to Children's Hospital for an operation to save him from a deformity.

The court will be asked:

"Has the Juvenile Court the right to order medical care for an ill child whose parents object and which physicians consider imperative?"

BATTLE EXPECTED

Mr. Smith said:

"We are going to do everything we can to fight this case and save the child. The parents, I understand, are going to put up just as strong opposition. I believe we have never had a test case of this kind in Juvenile Court."

Another 3-year-old boy, taken from Children's Hospital several months ago against the will of the doctors, was back in the hospital today. He is John Nostari, of 507 Station street, Wilmerding, who is suffering from a kidney disease. His parents brought him back to the hospital yesterday afternoon when his condition became critical.

Representative Max Spann, who is home from Harrisburg today, where he is sponsoring the new Juvenile Court bill, was astonished when he heard the story of the little dark-haired Millvale boy. He declared:

"That is one thing the bill would help. The court would have authority to do anything they could to save the life of a child."

Meanwhile Mrs. Lesic is staunch in her belief that she can care for her child at home. Standing outside her home yesterday with William clinging to her skirt, she said:

"I give William lots of milk and he gets lots of good fresh

WALSH QUITS JOB, BLAMES COYNE

McQuaide Appointed To Succeed Him As Police Head

Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh resigned on request of Mayor John S. Herron today.

Frank McQuaide, veteran private detective and son of a former superintendent, was appointed in his place.

Walsh, called into Public Safety Director James M. Clark's office shortly before noon today, was told by Clark:

"The Mayor desires your resignation."

Clark explained that it was a distasteful duty on his part, but he had nothing else to do "but carry out the wishes of the Mayor."

Walsh blamed his removal on State Senator James J. Coyne. He declared the only explanation he could offer was the possibility that Coyne made Mayor John S. Herron "change his mind."

WALSH STATEMENT

"I do not understand Mr. Herron's attitude in asking me to resign as Superintendent of Police. A few days after Mr. Herron was made acting Mayor, he called at my office and told me not to pay any attention to what I read in the newspapers, or what I heard regarding my removal or a shakeup in the Police Department. On the Sunday previous to his visit to my office there was an article in the papers which quoted Herron as saying:

"'Walsh was to be the first to go.'

"When I asked him about it, Mr. Herron said:

"'If any person thinks I am going into the Mayor's office to make wholesale dismissals and rip people out of office, they are damned badly fooled, because I am not going to do anything of the kind. So, all I

No Arms Embargoes!

IT IS HIGH TIME the irresponsible talk about an embargo upon the shipment of munitions or military material to Japan and China should cease.

In the first place, under the modern view of what constitutes munitions almost every conceivable article of merchandise is included—from dynamite to cotton wool.

An embargo, if consistently applied, would in effect be an interdiction of all commerce.

In the second place, it is a dangerous and provocative proposal.

The leading authorities on international law list an embargo as among the "non-amicable modes of redress" which, while not amounting actually to war, are nevertheless, together with non-intercourse laws, regarded as partaking of the nature of war measures, often serving as a prelude to actual hostilities.

In fact, during the earlier years of our history embargoes were laid with a definite contemplation of war and with the frank recognition that they were logical preliminaries to its actual declaration.

Should it surprise anyone, therefore, that the heedless and unthinking agitation today in favor of an embargo upon the exportation of war material to China or Japan should give rise to dangerous irritations and hostility in both of those countries?

OUR BUSINESS is to mind our business!

If we wish to stop the manufacture and sale of arms and war material altogether, that is one thing.

We hope the day will arrive when this can be done. But that day has not yet come, nor will it arrive until the spread of the humanitarian spirit throughout the world gives assurance that the danger of armed conflict has definitely passed.

Pending the world's attainment of that happy condition, we cannot afford nor should we presume to sell arms to one nation and prohibit their sale to another.

The result would be at once to involve us in the consequences of an invidious discrimination between nations, with whom we are on terms of friendship. We would be accused of taking sides in a controversy which does not concern us. The status of a neutral, with its security and immunities, would immediately be lost to us beyond retrieving.

We would find ourselves the object of bitter and lasting resentments, if not active reprisals—drawn nearer and nearer to the vortex of actual involvement in dangers that it is our whole interest as a nation to avoid.

The people of the United States manifested in no uncertain terms their opposition to the proposal of an arms embargo when it was brought forward by the recent Republican administration.

If the present administration is so ill-advised as to repeat the proposal, it will encounter the same opposition on the part of our people.

And the people will be right!

TAKE TRUCK, TIE DRIVER TO TREE

First Holdup of Legal Brew In District

In the first hijacking of 3.2 beer in this district, a truckload of the beverage was seized on the William Penn highway, east of Wilkinsburg, early today, the driver taken by automobile to Keown Station, 10 miles away, and tied to a tree.

Ernest E. Coulter, of Troy Hill, employed by the Milk Cartage Company, North Side, was driving up the steep hill on the outskirts of Wilkinsburg, with a truckload of 200 cases consigned by the Independent Brewing Company to customers in Punxsutawney, he reported.

Three men alighted from a sedan as Coulter, moving slowly, neared the top, and leaped on the running-board with drawn revolvers. They ordered him to drive to a road leading to Turtle Creek.

There, two of the hijackers compelled Coulter to enter their sedan while the third remained with the truck.

Coulter was taken by his captors to a woods near Keown station and bound to a tree. After an hour he freed himself and telephoned his employers.

County detectives broadcast a description of the hijackers, the truck and the sedan, on the police teletype.

The beer was valued at about $450 and the truck at $4,500, a representative of the cartage company said.

JAPS ATTACK U. S. SHOP

TOKIO, April 15.—(INS.)—A new violent demonstration against the General Electric Company of Japan, a subsidiary of the American combine, occurred today when a group of rioters attempted to wreck the company's showroom on the Ginza, Tokio's "Broadway."

Police dispersed the rioters before any damage was done, arresting three alleged ringleaders.

Partly anti-American and partly anti-Semitic, the recent series of demonstrations have their roots in a patent suit involving mazda lamps.

Dooris Kenyon, Sills Widow, Engaged

HOLLYWOOD, April 15.—(INS.)—The engagement of Doris Kenyon, screen and stage star and singer, and attractive young widow of Milton Sills, who was a film actor, to marry Arthur Hopkins, Syracuse, N. Y., broker, had been formally announced today by her mother, Mrs. Margaret T. Kenyon. The marriage probably will take place in June.

M'DONALD OFF FOR AMERICA

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 15.—(INS.)—Happy and jovial, Prime Minister MacDonald sailed for Washington aboard the liner Berengaria today to discuss world problems with President Roosevelt.

Accompanied by his daughter, Ishbel, and his assistants, the Prime Minister joked with reporters as he boarded the ship, bathed in a flood of warm spring sunshine. He declared:

"I think we may take the sunshine as a good augury of what's going to happen when we reach Washington."

No sooner had MacDonald reached the steamer from the boat train than he received a message cabled by President Roosevelt. It said:

"We are greatly looking for-

Parents Flee With Child To Avoid Eye Operation

Desert Besieged Hastings Home At Dawn

HASTINGS, N. Y., April 15.—(AP.)—The home of John Vasco, besieged by the curious since the start of a court fight to determine whether his 2-year-old daughter, Helen, shall undergo an operation for removal of a growth on her eye, was deserted today.

Neighbors said the family left at 5 a. m. in an automobile.

None of the neighbors knew where they had gone.

The automobile drew up to the house, Vasco, his wife and their three children, Mary, 11, and the twins, Helen and Anna, emerged, locked the door, entered the automobile and drove away. They took none of their personal effects.

Since the question of whether Helen should undergo an operation went to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court for decision, the Vasco home has been besieged by the curious.

The situation finally became so annoying to the family that Vasco barricaded the home. Yesterday, in response to his plea, a police guard was placed about the house and he raised the barricade, announcing he was reconciled to having the operation performed, should the Appellate Division decree it.

He disclosed, however, that his wife still was unready to give her approval.

Physicians have diagnosed Helen's affliction as a tumor of the retina of the left eye, and have said that if it is not removed it would cause death. An operation, the doctors said, might cause blindness.

Blues Singer Weds In Radio Romance

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—(Universal.)—Culminating a "radio romance," Paul Rickenbacker, production manager for Station KHJ, and Mona Low, radio blues singer, will be married here late today.

Although engaged for more than a year, Rickenbacker and Miss Lowe have seen each other only twice in that time.

'Early Birds' Out—But Trout Get the Worms

LIGONIER, April 15.—Hundreds of fishermen—and women, girls and boys—flocked to mountain streams today to seek elusive trout.

The early birds had the proverbial fisherman's luck, for the catches were few and small. An early rain drenched the crowds.

The trout season opened at midnight.

The water was high and clear, and the fish well fed. As a result, no one was satisfied with his catch.

The largest string seen along Linn Run was that of Fred Wegley, of Latrobe, who caught five slightly over the six-inch limit.

Joseph Gerst, 13, of 608 Sebring avenue, Beechview, was celebrating his thirteenth birthday fishing in Linn Run. He was accompanied by his sister, Louise, 14, and Lawrence Hood, 18, of 525 Peebles street, Wilkinsburg.

ARMS EMBARGO DENOUNCED

By ARTHUR HACHTEN

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The administration resolution giving the President authority to join other powers in declaring arms embargoes against aggressor nations was subjected to a terrific bombardment in the House yesterday.

Representatives Beck, of Pennsylvania; Wadsworth, of New York, and Tinkham, of Massachusetts, bombarded the resolution as likely to lead the United States into war and as an abdication of congressional power to declare war.

From Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, came charges the resolution had been inspired by the British government, with Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, a prime instigator in conferences with former Secretary of State Stimson.

Mulrooney's Post Goes to Deputy

NEW YORK, April 15.—(INS.)—Deputy Chief Inspector James S. Bolan was named police commissioner today to succeed Edward P. Mulrooney.

The politicians ended their long battle over the choice today after the field had narrowed down to Bolan and Deputy Chief Inspector Vincent J. Sweeney, in charge of Brooklyn detectives. Bolan has been in command of Manhattan police until he was elevated to his new post today.

Death Six Days Away, Ruth Judd Faces Jury

'Change' in Slayer's Mind Admitted by State Experts

International News Service.

STATE PRISON, FLORENCE, Ariz., April 15.—With state's alienists admitting that Winnie Ruth Judd's mind had "changed," a jury today was to hear the first testimony in the insanity trial that will decide the fate of the blonde "double trunk" murderess.

Mrs. Judd's lease on life is now six days. She is under sentence to be hanged Friday. She was accused of killing Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson and of shipping their dismembered bodies in trunks from Phoenix to Los Angeles.

She may not know her fate until a few hours before the scheduled hanging. She said yesterday:

"I don't want to hang, or go to an asylum. I want to stay here."

Prospects were that the sanity hearing would continue several days, and a lengthy deliberation would run the case until the very day of the scheduled hanging. It was considered possible that the Pardon Board might grant an additional reprieve.

Twenty jurors were selected late yesterday. The state and defense each will exercise four challenges today to select finally the jury of 12 men that will include cowboys, miners, storekeepers, ranchmen and Arizona-born Mexicans.

If three-fourths of the jury decide that she is insane, Mrs. Judd will be committed to the State Hospital for the Insane.

Easter Parade to Need Umbrellas, Goloshes

Raincoats, umbrellas and goloshes will be essential articles of milady's Easter costume tomorrow.

"Rain and cooler tonight and Sunday" was the official forecast for this district, a dreary prospect for the parade of Easter finery.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman reported rain varying from half an inch to an inch and a half was falling throughout the Ohio Valley. He saw no chance for this region to escape it. His only hope was that the rain might cease late tomorrow.

F. R. ACTS TO COMBINE JOB LOAN, FAIR PAY, 30-HOUR WEEK

SENATORS URGE BOLD PROGRAM FOR RECOVERY

Expansion of Currency Also Considered in Proposed Merger

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—In a bold stroke to revive business, the Roosevelt administration is considering combining currency expansion, the 30-hour week and minimum wage legislation with its public works bond issue of perhaps $5,000,000,000, Universal Service learns.

Advisers, who are urging the President to recommend this program at once to Congress, declare it not only would absorb millions of unemployed and stimulate prices, but would provide a planned national economy to prevent reckless overproduction and consequent periods of depression.

President Roosevelt, who was described as sympathetic to the consolidated plan, is anxious for a federal minimum, or fair, wage law if a constitutional means can be found.

LABOR REFORMS

The Black 30-hour week bill may become the vehicle of sweeping business and labor reforms, it appeared today.

The whole situation in Congress was altered with disclosure that the President favors the principle of a federal minimum wage law, and would like to see some plan worked out in connection with the short-week legislation.

The immediate effect of injection of the minimum wage provision in the legislation is to imperil its chances for early passage. But it may also result in Congress tackling the question of unemployment on a far broader scale than was contemplated in the Black bill.

Senators Wagner, La Follette, Costigan and Cutting, sponsors of public works legislation, called at the White House late yesterday to work with the President on the construction program. The bond issue may reach $5,000,000,000, it was said, but the plan may not be ready for 10 days or two weeks. La Follette urged a $6,000,000,000 bond issue.

SPEED URGED

The senators urged speed in setting up federal minimum wage boards. The President feels minimum wage legislation is necessary to force the 8 or 10 per cent of industry, which follows a cut-throat wage policy, to come into line. La Follette favored fixing a rock bottom wage, with authority to adjust wages above the minimum for each industry.

Under the plan to combine currency expansion with public works, contractors doing work for the government would be paid partially in bonds, which could be exchanged for new currency.

Advisers are confident of the President's approval. Leaders said it would meet the demands of the large Congressional bloc insisting on currency inflation to restore commodity prices.

The expansion would be strictly controlled. It would be supplemental to drives by the government to sell public works bonds direct to the people, eliminating financial middlemen.

BRITON CALLS RUSS CHARGES 'FRAME-UP'

Soviet Court Blocks Sabotage Trial Protest

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., April 15.—(AP.)—Allan Monkhouse, chief of the six British engineers on trial here on charges of espionage, sabotage and bribery, dramatically protested to the Soviet court today that the whole trial was "a frame-up against the Metropolitan-Vickers Company engineers based on evidence of terrorized prisoners."

Monkhouse asserted:

"After listening to the statements of Soviet citizens yesterday and the day before, it is perfectly clear to me that this case is a frameup against the Metropolitan-Vickers Company engineers, based on evidence of terrorized prisoners.

"I know from my own experience when I was arrested and subjected to 18 hours' continuous examination—"

At that point he was interrupted by Presiding Judge Vassili Ulrich. The judge ruled Monkhouse, who spoke in English, had no right to make the declaration at this time.

L. C. Thornton, who was in charge of all erection work in Russia by the Metropolitan-Vickers Company, denied the most sensational accusation yet made from the witness stand—that he organized a plot to paralyze war industries and agencies and the government buildings in Moscow's Kremlin in the event of war.

The prosecution called the Russian, Olyenik, one of the defendants, formerly employed in San Francisco and Chicago by the Westinghouse Electrical Company. Olyenik said:

"Thornton told me in 1932 that the damage at Baku was done deliberately."

Thornton cried from his seat in the prisoner's dock:

"That's not true."

7 SLAIN, CUBAN TERROR REIGN CRUSHED

Epidemic of Bombings Ends After Police Kill Three Youths

HAVANA, Cuba, April 15.—(AP.)—Seven persons have been slain in two days of political terrorism in the Havana area.

An epidemic of bombings ended quickly after the slaying of three Cuban youths by police yesterday. Rounding up of persons suspected of anti-government activities continued relentlessly, however. Police halted and searched automobiles and raided residences, throwing dozens of suspects in jail.

The Spanish Embassy moved to protect its nations, and other foreign representatives were expected to follow suit.

This action came after two young Cubans were suddenly found shot and killed shortly after being turned over to "expert" or plainclothes police.

Abilio and Albert Daussa, 25 and 23 years old, sons of J. M. Valdez Leon, Cuban government paymaster general, were believed by the police to have supplied bombs used in Thursday night's series of 17 explosions. Shortly after their arrest, shots rang out in the exclusive Vedado section of Havana. Uniformed police rushed up to find the youths fatally shot. Each was shot in the head and body.

A brother, Ramiro Daussa, has been serving sentence since last year on terrorist charges and the father was also placed under arrest last night.

The third Cuban youth slain by police was Manuel Garcia, 19, who died last night. He was among youths fired upon by police when they fled from a street corner.

can say to you, Peter, don't pay any attention to what the papers say. Sit tight and keep smiling, as we have been friends for many, many years.'

CITES PRAISE

"On March 28, in the William Penn Hotel, when the City of Pittsburgh was awarded first prize for having less accidents than any city in the country, having a population over 500,000, Mr. Herron, in accepting a plaque on behalf of the City of Pittsburgh, made a public statement before the audience and over the radio that Pittsburgh had a wonderful police department and that he was proud of it and that it was well managed.

"Mr. Herron has always spoken in the highest terms of me as a police official and of my ability in conducting the Police Department, and has always regarded me as a capable and efficient executive.

"The only explanation I can offer for this change in attitude on the part of Mr. Herron is the possibility that Mr. Coyne, with whom he is closely affiliated, made him change his mind and ask for my resignation."

FEW SURPRISED

Walsh apparently was the only surprised person around City Hall today. His resignation has been freely talked about ever since Charles H. Kline resigned.

It was considered likely that no change would be made in the directorship of the Public Safety Department at this time. The fact that Clark was given the job of asking for Walsh's resignation pointed to as indicative of this.

One other major change in the Police Department was forecast in the possible resignation of Senior Capt. Harry Mellon of the Downtown District. Mellon, a close friend of Walsh, was expected to resign late today.

CLARK WORRIED

Clark was summoned to Mayor Herron's office shortly before 10 o'clock this morning. Anxious about his own status with the new administration, Clark listened closely for something concerning his own future.

Mayor Herron instructed the director to ask for Walsh's resignation, and nothing more.

Director Clark asked:

"Well, what about me, Mr. Mayor?"

Herron patted the director on the shoulder and replied:

"Now, Jim. We won't talk about that now."

And then as an afterthought, he added:

"I'll be seeing you Tuesday."

Clark came out of the Mayor's office puzzled. He said:

"I don't know what to think about it. He didn't say yes and he didn't say no."

END AKRON QUIZ AT LAKEHURST

LAKEHURST, N. J., April 15.—(AP.)—The navy court of inquiry investigating the destruction of the U. S. S. Akron and the subsequent loss of the blimp J-3 adjourned today, closing its study of the Lakehurst phases of the twin disasters.

The court adjourned without reporting findings in either crash.

Judge Advocate Ralph G. Pennoyer announced the J-3 inquiry was officially terminated. The court will, he said, report its decision to the Secretary of the Navy.

The court will resume study of the Akron crash at the Washington Navy Yard Tuesday, Pennoyer added. Bureau of Aeronautics officers and officials of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Company, manufacturers of the Akron, are to testify.

ward to your being with us and wish you a good voyage."

MACDONALD REPLIES

MacDonald immediately dispatched the following reply:

"Thank you very much for your cable. I am leaving in wonderful weather, which I take as a good omen."

Then, turning to the correspondents who crowded around him, the British statesman informally outlined a little of what he hopes to achieve by his trans-Atlantic mission. He said:

"I will do my best during the brief week-end, which is all I can spare, to strengthen the good will existing between the United States and ourselves and find out new ways of co-operating in the great and difficult task of recovering from the abnormal distress from which the world is suffering.

"Moreover, I am also glad of this opportunity for renewing my friendship with President Roosevelt, whose courage and simplicity have already won him the trust and confidence of the American people."

DAUGHTER ON TRIP

MacDonald is accompanied by his daughter, Ishbel, and four economic experts.

As MacDonald left port he received this message from King George:

"On your departure for Washington, you know that my best wishes go with you for the success of your mission. I trust you will have a pleasant journey and a happy return."

Mr. MacDonald replied:

"I am much encouraged by your majesty's gracious message and send my grateful thanks."

BRANDT'S SON RELEASED

H. C. Brandt, 20, of Perrysville, son of State Senator Herman P. Brandt, was discharged in Traffic Court by Magistrate J. Scott Morgan today when the arresting officers failed to appear against him.

Young Brandt had been arrested following a crash between his father's car bearing a "Legislature license" and a police car in East Ohio street last February 4.

He failed to show up at a hearing in North Side Police Court two days later. The magistrate was told young Brandt had to drive his father to Harrisburg on his way to Princeton University, where he is a student. The hearing was then postponed until today.

The young man told Magistrate Morgan:

"I was waiting for a girl friend to come out of a store. When she entered the car I started it and hit a radio police car but didn't damage it. The officer berated me and gave me a cummons."

Brandt was accompanied to Traffic Court by former Police Magistrate E. M. Houck, of the North Side.

CHARGE FRAUD BY SQUIRES

Information charging two justices of the peace and one constable with conspiracy to defraud Allegheny County and the state in non-payment of costs was made this morning before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan.

County Detective David Drexler made the informations against Squire Fred W. Roll, Glenfield; Squire Thomas H. Speck, Aleppo Township, and Constable John M. Fiebig, employed by both the squires.

Drexler said the sum involved was "way up in the thousands."

Warrants were to be served today, and the three men's hearings were scheduled for next week. The action is part of a campaign by District Attorney Andrew T. Park against alleged dishonesties of constables and justices. Drexler is in charge of the investigations.

16-TO-1 SILVER DRIVE REVIVED

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(INS.)—A drive to expand the currency was under way in the Senate today as a group of insurgent Democrats demanded remonetization of silver at the historic "16 to 1" ratio.

At the instance of the group, Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, offered an amendment to the pending farm relief bill, authorizing the Treasury to remonetize silver. He proposed the same ratio which the late William Jennings Bryan demanded in his "free silver" campaigns of the nineties.

The same group was prepared, too, to support the amendment of Senator Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma, proposing to authorize the Treasury to inflate the currency through any one of three methods. The administration would be empowered to choose between free coinage of silver at its own fixed ratio, issuance of "greenbacks" on the faith and credit of the government and reduction of the gold content of the dollar.

Wisconsin Erases Ban On Sunday Amusements

MADISON, Wis., April 15.—(AP.)—Wisconsin has officially erased from its statute books an 84-year-old blue law which prohibited sports, entertainment and dancing on Sunday.

A repealer, passed by the Legislature, was signed yesterday by Gov. A. G. Schmedeman just a year after the voters had demanded in a referendum that the law be eradicated. For years it was enforced in only a few communities. Twelve previous Legislatures had considered doing away with it and refused.

The prohibition against Sunday diversions dater back to 1849. It included not only sports, theaters and entertainment, but all employment, except work of necessity and charity.

It was unlawful for any person to promote shows, sports or dancing on Sunday and all citizens were prohibited from taking part in such diversions.

As the statute gathered dust, its inhibitions came to be ignored in the metropolitan sections and the lack of observance spread. A few areas, however, continued enforcement. There was an occasional instance of a baseball or cinema promoter being arrested and fined, but no action was taken against those attending their attractions.

Women Jurors Warned Against Youth's 'Beauty'

CLEVELAND, April 15.—(AP.)—Six women had been chosen today to serve on the jury trying John Campbell, 19, of Chicago, on a robbery charge, but not until they had given satisfactory answers to the question:

"Will you set him free because he is good looking?"

The question was asked by Assistant Prosecutor Frank D. Celebrzze, who twice in the last few days has received reports that women jurors aided in the acquittal of men defendants because they "were too good looking to convict."

Celebrezze said Campbell and a girl were wrecked in a stolen automobile here November 19. Later Bert Schultz identified Campbell as the youth who had robbed him of $308 just before the crash. Campbell, also charged with three other robberies, is wanted in Chicago for auto stealing, the prosecutor asserted.

Police said Campbell and the girl, who was unaware of his record, were on their way to Chicago to be married when the accident occurred.

Walsh 'Prodigy' of Force, His Long Record Reveals

A long record on the police rolls was terminated with the passing of Peter P. Walsh from the office of Police Superintendent.

Walsh joined the force July 6, 1898, as a sub-patrolman. He rose steadily in the ranks. He was appointed a regular patrolman June 6, 1899, and on April 3, 1903, was promoted to lieutenant.

He became the youngest man ever to receive a captaincy on the force July 23, 1903, and January 30, 1907, was appointed inspector, also the youngest to hold that commission. He served as inspector in every district in the city.

He was appointed Police Commissioner February 18, 1914. He retired January 31, 1920, and became chief of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation police.

When Charles H. Kline was elected mayor in 1926, Walsh was appointed Police Superintendent January 4.

Walsh was born on Bluff street, in the neighborhood where he now lives. He quit school when he was 12, to go to work in the Fort Pitt glass factory in Epiphany street.

He is the father of 11 children, 10 of whom are living.

During his long service on the police force, Walsh was escort and guard for many visiting dignitaries. Among them were Presidents Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Coolidge and Hoover; Cardinal Mercier, Belgian prelate; Willam Jennings Bryan and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

During the investigation of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, Walsh was summoned with other police heads to a conference with Gov. Moore, of New Jersey, to lay plans for the recovery of the child.

BELLS OF ROME RING GLAD MESSAGE OF RESURRECTION

EASTER FIRE LIGHTED AT ST. PETER'S

Pope Pius to Revive Ancient Ritual at Mass Tomorrow

ROME, April 15.—(AP.)—Tidings of joy were broadcast by Rome's church bells at noon today. For the nineteen hundredth time the glad message of Christ's resurrection went out to the Christian world.

It announced the end of Lent and the period of deep mourning that began on Holy Thursday. The faithful may now give themselves over to rejoicing.

Tomorrow will see the return of one of the church's most important annual events, after 63 years' abandonment. Pope Pius will follow the custom of his old-time predecessors by saying Easter mass in St. Peter's and blessing the populace outside from the Basilica's balcony.

CANDLE BLESSED

Cardinal Pacelli blessed the Pope's paschal candle, eight feet high and three inches in diameter, in a ceremony at St. Peter's today. He also lighted the Easter fire, suggestive of the resurrection, by striking a spark from a flint.

At the conclusion of a special mass he imparted a benediction with relics of Christ's passion and death.

The Pope's apartment was blessed in accordance with the Easter custom, together with other Vatican establishments. Priests went from house to house in every city in Italy, sprinkling every room and office with holy water. The master of the house, following custom, then placed a silver offering in the holy water canister, carried by an acolyte.

In homes where the families had placed their evening repast out on the table, this first meal they would eat after Lent also was blessed.

PICTURESQUE RITUAL

One of the day's most picturesque rituals was held at Florence. It was the traditional "explosion of the sacred cart." Four white oxen, with gilded horns and hoofs, drew a wagon decorated with flags and flowers and loaded with fireworks into the cathedral square.

The crowd in the square cheered wildly when an artificial pigeon, carrying a pyrotechnic rocket lighted by a priest before the cathedral's high altar, roared along a wire out the doors to the cart and set off the fireworks. Its successful operation was taken as a sign of excellent harvests to come.

Hundreds of foreigners who have been studying in Rome's seminaries were among graduating classes ordained to the priesthood this morning.

ART STUDENT MODERN 'MONA'

CHICAGO, April 15.—(AP.)—There's a modern Mona Lisa in Chicago and if it hadn't been for a friend probably she nor the world would never have known it.

She is Miss Maxine Walker, 21-year-old Art Institute student, chosen by a committee of three as the young woman who came closest to resembling the model Da Vinci immortalized with paint and brush.

Miss Walker was declared by the judges to possess the same mysterious eyes and smile of the original Mona Lisa and to have that same enigmatic look, the meaning of which has been a source of disagreement among critics of the Da Vinci masterpiece in the Louvre Galleries, Paris.

However, the Chicago Mona didn't even know a contest was being held until a friend called her out of class and without a word marched her over to the adjacent Goodman Theater where she literally "stopped" the contest.

Congress Can Always Repeal The Sandwich

-By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER-

Congress got itself a big supply of beer yesterday. Not taking any chances of future voting going wrong.

It will be served in the House lunch room either with food or without.

Looks like we have turned some kind of corner even if we didn't make the pivot in military fashion. We sort of skated around on one foot.

The parliamentary procedure is to order a sandwich and a bottle of beer. The next step is to indorse the bottle and repudiate the sandwich.

The delegates-at-lager can always appoint a few extra proxies. And the sergeant-at-arms can call the roll by checking up the empties.

So, it looks as if this Congress should go on forever. A motion to disband will only mean to adjourn next door.

ELEANOR BOARDMAN . . . PICTURED IN DIVORCE COURT

MOVE BY VIDOR BALKS DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—(AP.)—King Vidor's lawyer will file a motion, he has announced, to vacate the proceeding whereby the film director's wife, Eleanor Boardman, actress, obtained a divorce three days ago.

Pending decision on this motion, Superior Judge Dudley Valentine said he would defer signing the divorce decree.

Both the actress and Vidor were present as counsel for the latter attacked a court order that he pay $500 a month for support of the couple's two young children. The court ruled that Vidor was reported earning $10,000 a month, the $500 was not too high.

Representing Vidor, Attorney Ralph H. Blum contended Miss Boardman had promised not to charge infidelity and Vidor, consequently, did not contest the suit. At the recent hearing she testified she and a detective surprised Vidor informally clad at the apartment of Betty Hill, a studio employe. Seeking to reopen the entire case, Vidor denied the charges.

On request of prosecutor E. M. Botkin, an indictment charging Truesdale with the slaying of Miss Woods was nolled. Two weeks ago Truesdale was acquitted of slaying his brother.

Miss Woods and Earl Truesdale were beaten to death the night of May 30, 1931, after they left a dance hall. Their bodies were found in a water-filled stone quarry.

STRIKE PICKETS JEER MINERS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 15.—Several hundred men, women and children formed a picket line today at the mine of the Republic Steel Corporation, at Republic, as a score of deputies stood guard.

A strike was declared over night for a 20 per cent wage increase. Today only a small proportion of the 384 men employed on the shift was reported at work.

The company sent buses and private automobiles to the homes of miners willing to work. These were greeted with threats and jeers as they approached the mine.

Women in the picket line brandished clubs and school children added their voices to the shouts.

'FOLLIES' GIRL, PRISONED BY SUITOR, FREED

Rescued in France After Appeal to Ex-Mate in N. Y.

LAGNY, France, April 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ethel Robeen Coval, 38, former Ziegfeld "Follies" girl, was accompanied today to this town, 20 miles east of Paris, from the nearby home of Rene Petitjejan, by gendarmes. They went there yesterday in response to a letter she wrote saying she was unable to leave the place.

The gendarmerie took a statement from her in which she alleged she was forced to be a household drudge instead of leading an anticipated life or romance in the woodland home.

Petitjean asserted Mrs. Coval was free to leave and attributed her allegations to hysteria.

Mrs. Coval told the gendarmes she came to France in January, expecting Petitjean, a former commercial agent in New York City, to marry her. She said the romance was blasted. An investigation began after she sent a letter to her former husband, Charles E. Coval, of New York.

Mrs. Coval's maiden name was Robeen. She appeared in the "Follies" before her marriage.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP.)—Charles E. Coval, editor of a magazine devoted to activity on Park avenue, said today that he would forward money to France for the return to New York of his divorced wife who said she had been held prisoner on a French farm.

Coval said he received a letter from his former wife last Wednesday, in which she told of her detention, and that he immediately communicated with consular officials. He was gratified at their prompt action.

$100,000 PEARL STRING STOLEN

NEW YORK, April 15.—(Universal.)—A necklace of 91 matched pearls, valued at $100,000, was either lost or snipped from the throat of the socially registered Mrs. Theresa L. Noble Thursday, is is revealed by insurance representatives.

Reporting the loss to police, Mrs. Noble, wife of Dr. Eugene L. Noble, asserted she wore the pearls on a shopping trip Thursday. Late in the afternoon she attended a tea at the Hotel Biltmore and on returning home discovered her loss.

The theory that expert jewel thieves removed the necklace while Mrs. Noble was in a shop or at the hotel was given credence when word was sent out to the underworld by insurance agents that $10,000 would be paid for the return of the gems.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 15.—(AP.)—Permission for sale of the new 3.2 per cent beer at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway 500-mile race here May 30 was announced today by Paul Fry, state excise director.

The ruling was made in a liberalization of the restaurant section of the Indiana beer control law. It also will permit sale of the beverage at state and county fairs.

The law provides that when consumed on the premises, beer must be sold "with food."

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 15.—(AP.)—The Alabama Senate last night killed a 3.2 per cent beer "rider," 26 to 7, in the closing hours of the special session of the Legislature.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 15.—(AP.)—Gov. Hill McAlister late yesterday signed a bill making 3.2 per cent beer legal in Tennessee on May 1. This is the first modification of the state's "bone dry" law since it was enacted in 1909.

The son, unable to reach his mother by telephone, went to her rooms. He found her body dressed in the clothes in which she was last seen Thursday.

Martin C. Maumee, 60, of Castle Shannon, operator of the shuttle line, severely beaten when he grappled with his assailant, told police he picked up the man in Mt. Lebanon and carried him to the borough line, where two other passengers left the car. He said the man demanded money and threatened him with a blackjack. Angered when Maumee failed to comply quickly, he slugged him.

Maumee said:

Regaining his senses, Maumee took the trolley back to Mt. Lebanon and reported the attack. At the office of Dr. J. M. Johnston, of Central square, several stitches were taken in his head and face.

Details of the protest have not yet been made public, but Berlin dispatches indicated offense had been taken particularly in connection with an impassioned speech by Austen Chamberlain, former foreign secretary.

Mr. Chamberlain described the new spirit in Germany as "the worst of old Prussianism with an added savagery, national pride and exclusiveness which cannot allow to any fellow subject not of pure Nordic birth, equality of rights or citizenship within the country to which they belong."

The attitude in official circles today was that the British government is not responsible for opinions expressed by private members of the House.

EVIDENCE OF EASTER MANIFOLD

Resurrection Gives Immortality Hope, Sermonette Says

This is the seventh and last in a series of Lenten sermonettes by Pittsburgh ministers under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches. It is entitled "Jesus Lives," and was written by the Rev. Dr. Samuel McPherson Laing, of the Second United Presbyterian Church, North Side.

Tomorrow is Easter. The calendar-fact is well proclaimed on every hand; children with the Easter bunnies and Easter eggs; business in the mad rush of Easter trade; pilgrims crowding the highways to His tomb which is the center of the religious world, and worshippers filling our churches in greater numbers than at any other season of the year.

The evidence that Easter is here is manifold. We wonder if the great spiritual significance of the event is really manifest! Somehow it is not easily overlooked that at the immediate time of the Resurrection the Risen Lord was mistaken for the gardener!

THE REV. DR. LAING

Do we see Him as He is—the Conqueror of death; the Author of life which is eternal? He lives! "And because He lives, I too shall live." "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." It is this glorious fact which gives to the Christian the certain and sure hope of immortality.

Jesus lives! Thy terrors now
Can, O Death, no more appal us;
Jesus lives! By this we know
Thou, O Grave, canst not enthral us.
Hallelujah.

Jesus lives! Henceforth is death
But the gate to life immortal;
This shall calm our trembling breath
When we pass its gloomy portal.
Hallelujah.

BUSINESS, PATRIOTIC LEADERS LAUD 'PRESIDENT'S DAY'

PUBLIC URGED TO SUPPORT EXECUTIVE

President's Day, April 30, met the approval and commendation of two leading Pittsburghers today in Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Col. Weaver H. Rogers, past president of the State Society of Sons of the American Revolution.

Col. Rogers, also a member of the education committee of the society, declared the movement to establish a President's Day would, besides its ennobling tendency, turn the people's attention toward the problems and burdens of government. He added:

"I think it's splendid, and ought to be encouraged. The President needs all the help he can get to carry on, especially in difficult times."

President Dunn likewise commended it, saying that he was an admirer and behind President Roosevelt completely, and the idea for such a day for every president was little enough for a people to do for their chief. He said:

"I think all Americans will agree that it's good. And I think it will meet their approval. The President certainly is doing a good job."

Societies to Mark Day With Services

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Enthusiastic acclaim for the plan to honor President Roosevelt on April 30 continued unabated today.

Prominent men and women expressed their hearty approval of the day of thanksgiving and prayer for the President's continued health.

The idea of "President's Day," proposed by William Randolph Hearst, was conceived to honor the President much as parents are honored annually with observances of "Mother's Day" and "Father's Day."

In the observance of the day special prayers will be said in all the churches and many civic and patriotic societies are planning to hold ceremonies in keeping with the solemn significance of the occasion.

INSURANCE MEN ASK U. S. FAITH

Financial Independence Week, beginning Monday, will be celebrated in the Pittsburgh district by leading figures in insurance and financial circles, according to Eric G. Johnson, general chairman of the local committee.

The slogan, "Face the Future Unafraid," will be broadcast to the nation by radio and newspaper advertising. Johnson said:

"The object of this week is to establish in the minds of the American public not only increased faith in life insurance, but in America."

Breakfast in the Hotel William Penn, Monday morning, will open the observance. Vincent B. Coffin, of Hartford, Conn., superintendent of agencies for Connecticut Mutual Life, will speak. Insurance representatives from the tri-state district are expected to attend.

Woman After Record Lands in East Indies

KUPANG, Dutch East Indies, April 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Harry Bonney, a cousin of Bert Hinkler, the noted Australian pilot who was lost last January on an England-Australia flight, arrived today from Port Darwin, Australia, on the first day of a flight to England.

She is attempting to beat the women's record for the distance—20 days—set by Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison.

The Life of Samson, Strong Man of the Bible -:- CHAPTER VII -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

Blind and shorn, grinding corn in prison at Gaza, Samson was helpless in the power of his enemies. But his hair began to grow, his strength to return.

Feasting at night the Philistines sent for Samson to make sport of him. Standing between the temple pillars he cried "Oh, Lord God, let me die with the Philistines."

Samson bowed with all his might and the pillars crashed. The temple fell and 3,000 Philistines who were upon its roof died with the rest in the debris. "So the dead which he slew at his death," says Samson's epitaph in the Bible, "were more than they which he slew in his life."

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen: . .

Some of you who wanted to see the cherry blossoms at Washington feel disappointed because you didn't get a chance to go down this week. Don't be discouraged.

Ralph Hemstreet, of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, says that the blossoms out this week are the single blossoms around the tidal basin. A gorgeous sight, to be sure, but not surpassing the bloom of the double cherry blossoms that will burst forth around the Lincoln Memorial the latter part of the coming week.

Many are of the opinion that this second bloom far excels the beauty of the single blossom.

* * *

As far as natural beauty is concerned, Mrs. Pasquarelli, of Forbes street, is contented with her reward of peach blossoms. This amateur Burbank planted a tree in the back yard about four years ago and this bit of rusticity is all the more compelling since it is almost in the heart of the downtown district.

* * *

Yesterday's broadcast about a robin building a nest in a traffic light at Washington brings a story from Mrs. C. O. Matisar, of Crafton, about another feathered friend using public property for private use.

This time it's Jenny Wren who makes her home in one of Uncle Sam's mail boxes.

Although the postman informed her that the Government wouldn't stand for it and the bird would have to be evicted instanter he didn't have the heart to carry out the order and so Jennie Wren for her fourth term is building her home and rearing her young there, carrying with her mate, almost a peck of sticks through the slotted letter drop.

Old-Timers Coming Back —And How

By AIRCASTER

Among the irritating items that accumulate annually to provoke an inquisitive laity are the doubtful destinies of pins, the roundabout route to oblivion of used razor blades and the ultimate fortunes, if any, of radio audition winners.

To these provocative queries, O. H. Caldwell, former Radio Commissioner, and currently an author, adds another which is not entirely new. The novelty of his inquiry lies in the fact that Caldwell, to whom the mysteries of technical radio are simple equations, supplies his own scientifically solid solution. He inquiries: "What becomes of all the old radio programs after they have been listened to?"

I had heard long ago that transmitted waves must sometime return to the earth. And, so Caldwell agrees, that's exactly what they must do. The programs that leave the microphone today will come bounding back, if Einstein is right, and space is really curved, no later than 500,000,000,000 years—and they might be worth waiting for, in the light of Caldwell's further revelations.

* * *

How odd it will seem to hear the Happiness Boys in the year 5,000,001,933, caroling and joshing each other in the low voice; Roxy still manning the mike at the Capitol, and Vincent Lopez banging out a nifty "hola" just as he was doing in 1920!

Caldwell explained:

"You see, space is, so we believe, curved like the walls of a vast cyclorama and the waves will follow the walls. There will, of course, be a delay in the rebound. I should say that some of our recent programs are now playing around the alpha centauri and betelgueze."

I got Caldwell the first time, with the help of an aspirin tablet. He means that the cosmic radio echoes will make sopranos sing bass; Jessica Dragonette will sound like Singin' Sam. Rubinoff's wyoleen will give off tones like the deep diapason of a huge pipe organ, and Cheerio's canaries will have the throats of bullfrogs.

COX THANKFUL AT EASTERTIDE

Easter will be a joyous day at Old St. Patrick's. Father Cox says, that, considering conditions, he has much that will command songs of praise and prayers of appreciation. His hungry by the hundreds are still being fed and clothed. His friends are still loyal in their efforts to help him in the big one-man job he is handling and the heart of Pittsburgh is still warm.

Easter does not mean much more than any other Sunday to his long daily breadline but the food is still on the table as regular as clockwork every noon for this army of jobless.

The hundreds of destitute families that come to him for baskets of food are still provided for. Father Cox will say his Easter masses with a smile of satisfaction because he can still carry on—can still feed and clothe his "flock."

Father Cox never loses an opportunity to proclaim what his activities would have been without the required support he must have were it not for the Sun-Telegraph. With the regular weekly check he gets today he will have been paid approximately $1,700 for commissions for subscriptions friends have given him for this newspaper.

Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment fund a liberal cash commission.

CO-ED REGRETS LOSING 'HOME' UNDER BRIDGE

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—(AP.)—A desire for solitude as well as to make the best of a lack of money was disclosed today by Gwyn Enerson, 19, Norwegian student of psychology and philosophy, who has lived more than two months beneath a bridge near the University of California at Los Angeles. She declared:

"I want to be able to get a little cabin somewhere by myself."

She expressed distaste for quarters in Mira Hershey Hall, a dormitory provided for her by the college dean of women, who had learned of her bridge abode.

Miss Enerson went on:

"I regret that they caught me just when they did. It was beginning to get warm, daytimes, although I was borrowing a blanket because it was still cold at nights.

"The long sunny mornings gave me lots of time to study. I would get up and read for hours in the sunshine, sitting behind a little bush in the ravine."

Miss Enerson transferred to U. C. L. A. from the University of Minnesota. For a while she lived in a small apartment. Then her money ran low and, as spring came on, she took up her abode under the little-used bridge which spans a ravine.

With her limited money she bought fruit and vegetables. Wandering about the foothill residential area she became acquainted with cooks and kitchen maids on several estates. Some of them were Scandinavians, like herself. They gave her sandwiches and bread.

ASK CITIZEN AID FOR TEACHERS

CHICAGO, April 15.—(AP.)—Citizens of Chicago were asked today by civic leaders to come to the rescue of the city's 14,000 unpaid teachers by buying 1932 school tax warrants to be sold during a campaign organized along the lines of the wartime Liberty Loan drives.

The appeal went out last night at a meeting called by Fred W. Sargeant, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, and attended by about 200 representatives of almost a score of civic organizations and Mayor Edward J. Kelly. A few hours before checks covering salaries for the last of June, 1932, had been mailed teachers.

As a starter for the drive, Sargeant reported that subscriptions for $3,100,000 of the warrants obtained by another committee would be applied.

SEEKS REMOVAL OF 'UNSAFE' SAFETY SIGN

Mrs. Lawrence Sees Traffic Menace in Billboard

Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence today apparently had won her first skirmish against billboards, particularly those emblazoned with "drive safe" slogans which she contends are a menace to autoists.

A letter from Mrs. Lawrence protesting a billboard in Water street near Liberty avenue, bearing a safety warning, was read before the Better Traffic Committee yesterday and referred to the education committee, of which Walter Rosenbaum is chairman.

Mrs. Lawrence asserted the billboard failed to accomplish its aim, the promotion of safe driving.

Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee, said:

"I think Mrs. Lawrence is right, not only with respect to this particular billboard, but to a thousand others scattered through the city. The education committee has received her request and it looks like the offending billboard would come down."

Mrs. Lawrence is chairman for Pennsylvania of the Billboard and Roadside Committee, Garden Club of America, which recently assailed New Jersey's action in erecting 500 huge "safety posters" along the highways of that state, [illegible] other organizations, Mrs. Lawrence has had introduced in the Legislature a bill imposing a graded tax on billboards.

MONKEY FUR BECOMES THE HIT OF THE SMART NEW FASHIONS

EVEN THE most dignified of us will be going in for a bit of monkey business before the season's over. Monkey fur is the hit of the spring. It's very amusing both for day and evening, when the fur is a beautiful quality and is used discreetly. As epaulets, it gives divinely square shoulders and that sleek, angular look that you've always longed for.

* * *

AT THE left you'll see what grand things it can do for an evening ensemble. This one is black with enormous white flowers printed all over it. The fur shoulders are lustrous and very, very smart. For an exciting contrast, you'll never beat black and red, especially flame red which is the color of the dance dress and jacket in the center. The epaulets here are set just off the top of the shoulders. These and the high neck of the frock accentuate the square look of the whole top. The lady at the right has turned her back to show the clever way that the scarf of her afternoon dress is cut, slit up the back and knotted together. Of course it's edged with monkey fur, just to prove how last minute it is. And like many of the newest costumes, it's blue.

* * *

NOT ALL the monkey fur that's being shown is black, though the black does seem to be the most effective. It's also worn in a sort of tan shade which is less glossy and looks well on the popular dull-surfaced fabrics. But see to it that the monkey you buy is good and healthy and thick as it should be thoroughly luxurious looking. You'll find it a beautifully cool summer fur.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Girls Have Varied Opinions About Public Dancing

What's the truth about public dances?

Can a lonely youngster go to them and still stay fine? Flory wanted to know. She and her chum had been taking them in because they longed for life and music and fun—

But the Office Force was horrified when poor Flory mentioned where she spent her evenings. "They're awful places!" snorted the other girl workers.

Do you agree that they are? Curley does.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I'd like to answer Flory's question about Public Dances. I've had some experiences that should throw some light on her problem.

Once, I had a job as understudy to the police reporter on a big metropolitan daily, and that's where I learned about such places.

There was one—one of the largest in the country—where there was a nightly crowd of a good many hundreds of people. It was a "fashionable" ballroom, patronized by people from all walks of life. The management wasn't particular about who came to enjoy the good music and the good floor, so the best class of people rubbed elbows with the worst.

One night a jilted lover came there and, while dancing with the girl who had repulsed him, shot and killed her. He escaped, and the ensuing investigations disclosed some things almost unbelievable, and that seemed to be choice bits from a nightmare.

A white slave ring, three dope peddlers, a rum-running gang and a group of young hold-up artists were all making this public ballroom their point of meeting, as well as the center of their operations. I saw several of these individuals, and it was startling to realize that such "clean-cut" and honest-looking people could pursue such livelihoods. So you can't tell by appearances what people are.

ADVISES SOCIAL CLUB

Of course, public dance halls are not all like that; but how is one to know?

So I'll say to Flory that public dance halls may be all right—and then again they may not. The best thing for any girl to do would be to join some social club, where the membership is usually of the right kind; or to widen her acquaintance, so that she'll meet people who can take her to private dances, where you have to have an invitation to get in. The chance of meeting the right kind of a fellow in a public dance hall is so small that it isn't worth bothering with. Curley.

That does sound pretty bad.

But—are "social clubs" and favorite dances always on the up and up? Mildred is by no means convinced that they are.

My Dear Miss Robinson:

I'd like to put in a few words about Public Dances. My girl chum and I, who are both from respectable homes and families, have been going to them for the last 10 years, and we've never been in any trouble so far. We go because we enjoy dancing, and the orchestras and floors in the big dance halls are good.

Our folks did raise Cain when we first began going, and some of our friends were horrified. To convince our folks that things weren't awful, we insisted that they go with us and see things for themselves.

RESPECTED BY MEN

In the years we've been going there we've met some nice, decent men folks. Of course there are good and bad in every crowd, but we found that the men who were looking for "good time girls" didn't waste their time asking us to dance. We're both good dancers, and we've been dancing with the same partners for years. They treat us with respect.

Of course we've had men ask us to "go on parties," but when we told them we didn't drink or smoke, and would be poor ones to invite, they laughed and no more was said. These same fellows are still good friends.

Naturally, you have to use your head if you go to such places, but that applies to any and every place you go, including plenty of "clubs" and lodge dances. We go to a lot of places like that, too, and we've seen plenty of liquor, and more suggestive dancing than would be allowed at a public hall.

We both contend that if a girl conducts herself like a lady and uses sense, the people she meets at public dances will do likewise. But if she is silly and noisy, she'll attract the wrong kind of man, whether she's at a public dance or any other kind of entertainment.

You can be just as respectable and respected at a public dance as you can anywhere. It's up to you, yourself. Mildred.

And that, to me, sounds like common sense!

THE NEW YOUNG LADY

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"CHESTS UP, MAMSELLES!"

If that trouble-making Dame, Fashion, has done very few good things for Madames and Misses in the history of Modes and Manners, she has just up and done ONE. One that should please a lady and he who loves her—both. She has straightened up the feminine figure—made it fashionable and smart and tres chic to be straight and healthy-looking. The slouch that endured so long in spite of raves against it, from gyms and editorial desks and studios, is at last in mothballs, Delphine; and my dear, it is very passe and OUT to stand like a figure S. If you must look languid, do it standing up straight. If you will take the trouble to notice—Garbo, the white queen of all vamps, mysterious, slithery, never wore a caved-in chest. Her shoulders are broad and square, and though a West Pointer could find flaws in the forward thrust of her chin, and the sway in her back, she has always managed to look like a healthy young Swede in her most languid moments.

The new young lady wears her shoulders back and down, not up around her ears, her chest up as though it had a whale-bone hoop under it, and her tummy in. It's beautiful I think. Straight back, instead of the broad rounded expanse that has offended under the glare after the theater, somewhat like a sail in the wind, instead of a back with a spine in it. Chests up; chin up; an imaginery ruler just between the shoulder blades with a jaunty head stuck on it! My—but she's pretty.

You see her now on every street, trying to live up to the decree; a healthy, wholesome, beautiful fashion. From the artist and the sculptor's viewpoint—just grand! —NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Baby

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My baby will be born in a few months. My husband passed away about a month ago, and I am in a quandary regarding the announcements of my baby's birth. Is it proper to announce the baby's arrival in a case like this or not? If it is, will you please advise which manner is correct? Would little cards be in order?

2—If the announcements may be sent out, how should they be worded, "Mrs. John Smith or Mrs. Gertrude Smith announces and so forth?" READER.

1—I think, dear lady, that under the circumstances, it would be the best form for you to write little notes of announcement to friends who do not live near you and who may not know of your baby's arrival.

Your sweet note to me touched me so much that may I tell you of my deep and friendly appreciation of your sorrow, and of my admiration of your bravery? My dearest wishes and prayers are with you, dear friend, and my hope that your baby will bring you, as I am sure it will, the comfort that your heart so much needs.

2—If you do decide to send out announcement-cards (and of course they will be thoroughly correct, if you wish to take the trouble to send them), use your formal name, which is the same as it was when your husband was living: Mrs. John Smith.

Tea and Coffee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am on a committee to plan a tea for a group of young people. It was my idea to give a simple tea with tea, dainty sandwiches and tea cakes, but I find that some of the committee wants to serve coffee with the tea. I objected to this, but they insist that it is quite proper now to serve both.

I would appreciate your suggestions. T.

I agree, whole-heartedly, with the members of the committee who suggest that both tea and coffee be offered to the guests at the tea. This fashion of offering coffee as an alternative for tea has been very popular for the past few years, and I think it's an excellent idea. Many people prefer coffee to tea, and so it would seem the "way of hospitality" to offer these guests what they would enjoy more. Don't you agree?

Also it gives an opportunity of having a charming balance to your tea-table. That is, have one co-hostess seated at one end of the tea-table presiding over the tea-service, and one at the end opposite, presiding over the coffee-service.

This idea of offering a choice-service also now is much seen when after-dinner coffee is served . . . that is, the hostess offers both coffee and a coffee-substitute. This gracious thoughtfulness, like the choice-of-tea-or-coffee, "meets all comers," and everyone is satisfied.

Doily

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What should one do with a paper doily that has been served with a fancy cup-cake along with a paper dish? Should the doily remain on the plate? M.

It is best to remove the paper doily or container when you place the cup-cakes on the serving-plate.

Heart of a Wife -:- -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Woman's Scream Heard From Direction of Shack

Although I have passed through many tense moments in my life, I have known none more filled with suspense than those in which I waited, pressed flat against the pine trees, while Dicky, Noel and Mary walked across the glade toward me.

It was not alone my anxiety over Dicky's probable, nay, certain anger at me for breaking my promise to him that was tautening my nerves. Joy at his safe landing; the reaction from the fear for him that had been mine, was mingled with the terror for the kidnaped girls that was clawing at my heart.

I knew that it was the zero hour; that if it had not been for Dicky's unexpected descent the signal for the attack upon the shack would have been given. Even now it waited only upon the presence of Harry Underwood and Hugh Grantland.

My body stiffened with a new fear. Dickey would be angry enough at my mere presence here. What would he say or do in the next second when he saw Hugh standing so close to me that our shoulders were touching?

I acquitted Hugh of any malice in standing next me. He simply had returned to the place of safety against the trees to which he had rushed me when it first became evident that Dicky meant to land his autogyro in the glade. But I could not hope to make Dicky see that, and there was no time for any change of position, unless—

With a feeling of desperation I flung myself forward across the rapidly lessening space between the advancing figures and the trees which had sheltered me, and grasped Dicky by the arm.

NECESSARY INTERRUPTION

"Oh!" I whispered. "Dicky! You are safe! But why did you risk it? You might have been killed!"

The words came from the depths of my terror-torn heart, but I think I knew what the answer would be even before the mocking, raucous whisper sounded in my ears.

"My! My! Wouldn't that have been just too bad! But think how entrancing you'd look in the black! Faithful Fido would—"

The whisper stopped abruptly as my father, with Harry Underwood and Hugh Grantland close behind him came toward us from the trees. I wondered if my father had guessed how vital was the necessity for that interruption.

"Congratulations, my boy!" my father murmured. "That was a wonderful piece of work. You can take off again from the same place?"

"That's what I came down for sir." Dicky's answering murmur held on trace of the rancor which had pervaded his whisper. "I thought if there was any slip-up, any getaway, the little boat might come in handy."

"A wise precaution, although I hope we shall not need it," my father rejoined. "But you would best stay close beside it, in case you should wish to make a hurried ascent."

It was "The Chief" speaking now, and the quiet authority in my father's voice put it out of Dicky's power to remain near me and continue his recriminations, even if he had wished to go on with them.

TIME TO ATTACK

"I'll do that, sir, Dicky replied, and then my father turned to the others.

"Should not the signal for the attack be given now?" he asked, but the question was a command. "It is a whole minute past the time, and minutes, yes, seconds, are precious. Their suspicions may have been aroused by Richard's gyroscope."

"It shall be given immediately," Hugh answered, and he and Harry stole along the trees until the darkness swallowed them.

For two or three seconds I stood tensely waiting, every nerve keyed to hear the first sounds of the attack. Behind me, oblivious to everything else, I heard Noel murmuring: "My brave darling! You might have been killed!" I heard also Philip Veritzen's snort of annoyance, distinct, but, to do him justice, quickly suppressed. Dicky had not yet moved toward his autogyro, although he had turned his body toward it.

Ronald had taken the place next to me that Hugh had vacated, and his short, convulsive breathing told be how agonizing was his suspense.

And then from the direction of the shack there came a high pitched scream—a woman's.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Vacation Is a Time for Precaution

Vacation time is drawing near. During the summer months there is a great migration of citizens from one state to another. The old automobile will be polished, oiled and greased in preparation for vacation trips.

Dr. Copeland

There are many hazards and dangers in automobile traveling. I do not refer to physical accidents, but to health hazards and dangers frequently overlooked by vacationists. Today, I want to point out a few of these pitfalls so that you may avoid them.

The drinking of contaminated water is a danger that should be avoided. If you camp by the wayside, or put up in isolated sections, be careful of the water you drink. Typhoid fever is a frequent occurrence among those who are careless about their drinking water.

Typhoid fever may be avoided by careful supervision of the water supply. It may also be prevented by receiving special typhoid inoculations. These injectons are simple and painless. I recommend them to all who plan any extended trip through the country.

Within the past few years there has been an increase in the number of cases of malaria in the United States. Many authorities regard this as due to increased motor travel. They believe that many automobolists camp in unhygienic spots where the "anopheles" mosquito lives.

This particular mosquito carries the parasite that causes malaria. This pest is usually found in marshy lands, stagnant ponds and infected swamps. When you pitch your camp avoid these places. Pick a spot that is high and dry. Mosquito netting should be a part of every camp equipment.

Another common vacation danger is contaminated milk. Merely because you are in the country, does not mean that the milk is pure and safe to drink. If in doubt, remember that it is unsafe to drink milk of inferior quality. Contaminated milk is a source of many serious infectious diseases.

When stopping for food select only clean eating places. Lack of cleanliness, carelessness in the handling of food, lack of ice and screens, and the presence of flies should be warnings of danger. These menaces to health should be looked for before ordering food.

I can never understand why persons who are accustomed to clean food and clean homes, should eat in filthy eating places. Perhaps it is due to the excitement of the trip that so many travelers are careless in regard to the food they eat and the water they drink.

Many persons carry their own food. For the short trip, this is an excellent idea. In addition to being assured of cleanliness, there is a lot of fun in preparing food along the countryside.

Many foods that are both nutritious and tempting can now be purchased in the form of canned goods. Canned milk, vegetables and fruits are easily carried on these trips.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. F. P. Q.—What causes little itchy pimples like mosquito bites to break out all over the body?

A.—This is probably due to hives. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

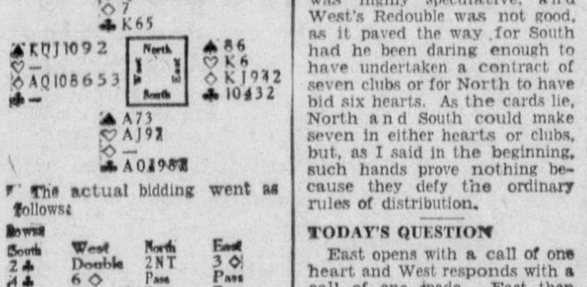
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Reefs of Distribution

Occasionally hands of such unusual and freakish distribution are dealt at the Bridge table that they practically defy the sound rules of bidding hands of a more orderly layout. These hands, when dealt, are the subjects of much discussion and usually result in the writing of many letters, inquiring as to what would be the correct bidding. I frankly confess that with distributions where the unusual becomes the usual and a freak parades as perfectly normal, the question of what to do is one that cannot be solved by other means than a "hunch" or perhaps a plunge into the higher realms of applied psychology.

Take, for instance, the hand below that was played at a club in Hartford, Conn., recently:

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The actual bidding went as follows:

South	West	North	East
2 ♣	Double	2 NT	3 ◇
4 ♣	6 ◇	Pass	Pass
Double	Redouble	Pass	Pass
Pass

South's Opening bid of two clubs is, of course, entirely unsound. Whatever he should do, he should not make a Forcing Opening bid with only 3½ honor-tricks in his hand. West's Double was not his best bid. His choice should have been the illuminating Overcall in his opponent's bid suit, a call which partner may not pass until a game contract at least is reached. The Takeout Double risked the slight possibility that the hand might be left in by partner for penalties or with the knowledge that even two clubs doubled would not give game to North and South and that discretion might appear to East as the better part of valor, in view of South's announcement of great strength.

North's bid of two notrump is a conventional response—the first conventional bid on an extremely unconventional hand. However, it is quite probable that he did not make his best choice and with his knowledge of South's propensity for unusual Opening Forcing bids he should probably have bid two hearts at once.

East made an entirely correct response to his partner's Double. South's bid of four clubs is probably not his best, but the hand was rapidly getting beyond control. West's bid of six diamonds is certainly justified, but South's Double, in view of the unusual course of the bidding, was highly speculative, and West's Redouble was not good, as it paved the way for South had he been daring enough to have undertaken a contract of seven clubs or for North to have bid six hearts. As the cards lie, North and South could make seven in either hearts or clubs, but, as I said in the beginning, such hands prove nothing because they defy the ordinary rules of distribution.

TODAY'S QUESTION

East opens with a call of one heart and West responds with a call of one spade. East then calls two diamonds and West two spades. What call, if any, should East now make with the following hand, no intervening bids?

♠ A 3 ♡ A K 10 6 7 ◇ K 10 8 7 6 ♣ Q

Answer: Three spades. The hand contains adequate trump support for partner's suit in view of his Rebid and sufficient strength in addition to that previously shown, so that partner should be given a further opportunity to bid.

Household Hints

Celery tops, dried in a warm oven and then crushed between the fingers to a powder, make an excellent flavoring for soups and stews. Store in an airtight tin.

Anchovy butter can be made at home. Get a tin or jar of anchovies—all need not be used; take out as many as required, break them into pieces, make them into pulp, add fresh butter to the pulp, and pound well. Season with a little cayenne pepper.

A piece of ribbon sewed inside the tops of the shoulders of your dress, with a snap at the other end of the ribbon and a snap sewed in the dress so that you can keep the strap of your slip from sliding down your arms takes but a short time to devise and gives you great comfort.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Enlarged pores on a complexion of coarse texture, are often an inheritance, like coarse wiry hair. That such a condition can be improved, there is no doubt, but treatment must be continued for a long, long time. Keep tissues nourished with a heavy cream or muscle oil, bathe the face every morning with cold water, follow along with applications of witch hazel. Once a day have a face ironing with an ice cube. And don't rub powder in! Flush it on.

Coat collars are rough on neck surfaces. Even the softest fur plays havoc because pelts gather dust quickly, grind it into pores, ruffle up a delicate epidermis. So, when giving the complexion its feast of cream at night, anoint the neck, front, sides and back, following with a brisk tapping with finger tips—use them as if they were hammers—and upward strokes with the flattened palm. Slap on a cold compress, cover with a dry one, say prayers and go to bed.

STOCKS STEADY UNDER WAVE OF SELLING

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP.)—The stock market was fairly steady in the early trading today, although scattered selling occurred in a handful of industrial issues. Commodity shares were active.

International Silver, Procter & Gamble and American Can advanced a point each. Smaller gains were shown in Consolidated Gas, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey and American Tobacco B. U. S. Steel was steady, while American Telephone, Allied Chemical and Santa Fe dipped slightly.

Announcement that the Treasury would not call the $6,268,095,250 fourth 4¼ Liberty bonds was prominent in the overnight news. A belief had been entertained in some circles that the government might send up a "trial balloon," that is, call a small part of the loan by way of a test of the market. It is generally assumed here that the administration is planning a large bond issue later in order to finance its extensive program of public works. Such a plan, it is believed, might conceivably have been the motivating reason in arriving at the present decision.

First quarter earnings of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company were not far from Wall street's estimates. The report was indicative of the grip which the managements continues to exercise over expenses, but the financial community noted that comment regarding the future outlook was avoided. The Bell System had 2,225,000 less telephones in service on April 1 than during the peak of 1930.

French francs opened strong against the dollar, but sterling sagged slightly. At 3.98 cents, francs showed an increase of ⅞ of a point. Sterling's initial quotation was $3.45, a drop of ⅛ of a cent.

DOLLAR FIRMER IN EUROPE

LONDON, April 15.—Sterling opened at 3.45½ but following a small demand for dollars, sold off to 3.43¾. Subsequently it firmed up to 3.44⅜.

PARIS, April 15.—The American dollar gained slightly in unofficial foreign exchange trading today closing at 25.19 francs, compared with unofficial quotations around 25 yesterday. French markets are closed for the Easter week-end.

CAR LOADINGS OFF 7,292

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Loading of revenue freight during the week ended April 8 totaled 487,296 cars, a decrease of 7,292 cars from the week preceding and 58,327 below the like week in 1932.

OTTAWA, April 15.—Canadian carloadings in week ended April 8 totaled 32,328 cars, a decrease of 2,256 from previous week, and 9,104 under same week in 1932.

Curb Seat Sells At $3,000 Advance

NEW YORK, April 15.—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Curb Exchange membership at $30,000, an increase of $3,000 compared to the last previous transaction.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP.)—Bank clearings make even a poorer showing than those of the two preceding weeks of this year, or since the virtual termination of the recent bank holiday. The change, however, is not very great. Total clearings for the week at all leading cities in the United States, now reporting, as shown by the records of Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., of $3,285,860,000 were 29.2 per cent under those of a year ago. At New York City, clearings were $2,278,178,000, a reduction of 27.2 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,007,682,000 was 33.3 per cent smaller.

Losses now are somewhat in excess of those for the closing months of last year. There are exceptions, however, to this fact, especially at some of the southern cities, where the decline is at a lower ratio than that shown for cities in most other geographical sections. This has continued to be the case for some time past. The losses mainly are at eastern and western centers and to some extent at Pacific Coast points. This week's clearings are $960,661,000 below those of last week; a year ago the decline was $942,115,000. A large reduction in bank settlements for the second week of the month is to be expected.

The report for leading centers, compared with those of last year, showing decreases, is printed herewith; also daily bank clearings since October:

WAGE FACTORS DISCUSSED BY ECONOMIST

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, April 15.—How are the wages of labor determined? How must they be determined in the long run?

By "labor" we mean any human effort for the purpose of production, except such as consists in the assumption of business risks. Labor may be manual or mental.

By wages we mean the share in the total product of industry which is attributable to labor. The wage share is what laborers as a group should receive if economic forces worked freely, without monopoly, ignorance of conditions, or exploitation. Actual wages paid may be more or less than this "share."

'REAL WAGES' CONCERN

Money wage rates, per hour or day, are one thing; actual earnings per year are another thing, depending partly upon time worked; "real wages" is still another thing, depending not only upon money earnings per year, but also upon cost of living." "Real wages" consists of the goods and services laborers get by their labor.

In the last analysis, we are concerned with total real wages.

The primary part of our problems is to determine what is the product attributable to labor. And we must at once get two notions out of our minds: one is that this quantity is fixed, and the other is that laborers can, in the long run be given more or less than this quantity.

SHARE NOT FIXED

If we take for granted a fixed "wages fund," and merely divide the number of laborers into it to arrive at the wage of each, we are assuming that wages, as defined, are already determined. But if we think that laborers can be paid more than they produce, we are going to the other extreme and are assuming that there is no economic limit upon wages. The "share" of labor is neither fixed, nor is it unlimited.

Nor does it help any to say that laborers have a "right to the whole product of labor." No one denies that. The question is: What is this "whole product?" It is a varying quantity and is determined by many changing and complicated forces.

Broadly speaking, the wages share depends upon (1) the total output of the productive activities of society, and (2) the position of labor as a claimant to a share in that product, along with capital, land and enterprise.

ANALYSIS NECESSARY

To be more precise, however, we must use the analysis of demand and supply. The demand for labor is derived from the value of products which are made jointly by the co-operation of land, labor, capital and enterprise.

The maximum demand—the most that can possibly be paid to labor in the long run—is, therefore, the total value product, minus the minimum amounts that must be paid for the services of land, capital and enterprise.

Rarely, however, is the actual demand that strong. Actually, the demand depends upon what employers are able and willing to pay. According to the principle of substitution, employers test out various combinations of the several factors of production. Thus they find out about how much additional laborers would add to the product, and how much a reduction in labor force would reduce it. They make their bids for labor accordingly.

EFFECT OF MACHINE

For example, if labor-saving machinery is abundant and cheap (considering efficiency), the demand for labor will be lower than otherwise. If land is abundant and cheap, the demand for labor and capital will be greater than otherwise.

In short, the maximum wage is fixed by the total product of industry and by the necessary shares of other factors. The effective demand at any time depends upon the relative abundance of labor and other factors, and upon their technical efficiencies in turning out products.

On the supply side, we have to deal with the "prices" at which laborers offer their services—what wage rates they are willing and able to take.

MINIMUM FOUND

Here we find, first, an absolute minimum. No laborer can work for less than subsistence. But above the subsistence minimum, there is effective a "standard of living," and industrial productivity is such that few have to work for wages lower than will allow them a certain amount of "comforts and conveniences" to which they have become strongly accustomed.

Standards of living, however, are not absolutely fixed. Furthermore, there is often some leeway between such a minimum, and the "demand price" which the employer is willing and able to pay. So the wage may vary above or below any given standard of living.

The chief conditions which determine such variations are: (1) The cost of laboring (difficulty and complexity of the job; (2) attractiveness of the work (pleasantness, hazard, prestige); (3) the "cost of living," and (3) the bargaining power of the laborer (organization, savings).

Owens Buys Stock Of Container Corp.

CHICAGO, April 15.—The Owens Illinois Glass Company has exercised an option to purchase 16,000 shares of the preferred stock of the Container Corp. of America, according to William E. Levis, president of Owens Illinois. On December 31, 1932, there were 18,322 shares of Container preferred outstanding. About 16,000 of which were owned by John Jacobs, formerly a director of the company.

The Love Letters of W. W.

EDWARD P. MULROONEY, Esq., Albany, N. Y.: My Dear Commissioner—I'm glad you're still a commissioner, for it wouldn't seem kosher to address you by any other tag. You've stood for all that a real Police Commissioner should mean to a community, and you've done it with a modesty and self-effacement that is rare in public life.

As one of the local police department's staunchest admirers—I want to add these jottings as testimony that New York has had less crime and violence since you governed the "Finest"—and all of us felt a lot safer with you down in Centre St.

But beyond the good things we've all heard about, there are so many heart-tuggers that never reached type. From my own experience I know dozens of cases where you sent wayward lassies and lads on the route back to clean living—in a way that their kin might have been proud. And, while I know that the "real story" isn't realy for telling yet, I happen to know this much.

That your best men have been toiling day and night on the greatest crime of our times. I hear that practically all the progress made on the case has come from Headquarters, and that you've questioned scores of people, one of whom actually remembered the description of the man who gave him $5 of the "hottest" currency on earth. So when the New York gendarmes solve that Lindy puzzle we'll take off our lids to you more willingly than ever.

I hope your flawless record of service to the city won't make it too tough for your successor and that you miss us all a little. Goombye, sir, and sugary luck to a "cop's cop"—and a man who certainly knows what to do with a glass of lager.

WILLIAM H. WOODIN, Treasury Dep't, Washington, D. C.: My Dear Sekkatree—I'm memoing you on behalf of the fortunate depositors who can give thanks to you for getting back one hundred centimes on the dollar from the Harriman Bank.

It was one of those frequent banking tangles in which John Chump usually finds himself in the middle. I was almost among them, sir, but I got my $2.50 out in time—because, Mr. Woodin—it would be most embarrassing if a bank closed in which I had some pennies—and people went around saying: "Ha-ha! He's supposed to know in advance, yet!"

As a matter of fact—one dope actually heard of me taking out the loot and made cracks.

At any rate, thanks for using your day off to arrange for the reopening of that bank. It was just a characteristic gesture of this amazing administration, which appears to be thriving on achievement. See you in church on "President's Day," April 30th.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, On Board S. S. Empress of Britain: My Dear Mr. Shaw—I see that too many of my more gullible contemporaries are panning you for nothing really important, therefore, I feel like raising my laryngitis in your defense. After all, the "barbaric" Americans have been trying every trick they could think of to get you to come here for decades and decades. So now you can say to all your boosers: "You asked me to come, so goodbye!"

I liked some of your pithy comments, and your criticism of our Constitution. When you said ours wasn't a Constitution because we kept amending it, that was the first time I realized it. I prefer it that way, though. Imagine having to obey all those blue laws in places where they never change their minds.

But, best of all, I liked Bernard Shaw, the business man, and Bernard Shaw, the publicity expert. As the former, you probably increased your book sales several hundred per cent by your brief visit, and as the latter, you won admiration by hitting the front pages constantly, even when you hit people who weren't your size. All in all, that 24-hour visit was a sharp, bitter little tonic that the so-called intelligentsia needed. Come again.

P. S.—You need a shave. You know, once over lightly, around the edges.

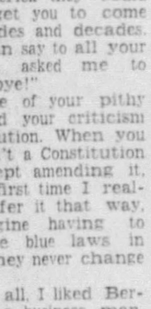
Joining the cast of "Berkeley Square," composed of Leslie Howard, Heather Angel, Valerie Taylor and Irene Browne, is Juliette Compton, who will play the role of the very haughty "Duchess of Devonshire."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Hurrah for our first lady of the land! I am strong for her, she uses a horse and an airplane, the airplane for business, and the horse for pleasure. You talk about beer and a lot of things coming back—say, the ol' horse is just headed back in a high lope.



Will Rogers

For young folks not to be able to ride nowadays is almost as bad as not "seeing your dentist twice a year." Hundred of riding academies where there used to be none, and this dude ranching thing is one of the healthiest and finest vacations in the world. Think of anybody being able to be a rancher, and not having to stand the loss and pay the taxes.

Mrs. Roosevelt good-naturedly admitted she fell off in a mud hole. Say, if we could ever see a mud hole once more in California, we would all purposely fall off in it, and wallow. Yours, WILL.

Shaw Swims In Film

THE GLOBE TROTTER

George Bernard Shaw stole a march on the sound newsreel cameramen by quitting the United States without saying a word into their microphones. Then, in the spirit of give-and-take, which Shaw seems to enjoy so much, Hearst Metrotone News retaliated by securing exclusive pictures of Shaw without his knowledge while he was taking a dip in the ship's swimming pool. In the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News the Globe Trotter tells all about it.

Impressive and spectacular pictures from St. Peter's in Rome, show the ceremonies attending the opening of the holy door, signifying the inauguration of the Holy Year proclaimed by the Pope.

President Roosevelt is seen opening the baseball season in Washington by throwing out the first ball in the game between the Senators and the Athletics.

Savate, the art of boxing with the feet as well as the hands, is revived in Paris and pictures show a large crowd attending one of the bouts.

Graduation tests by future army fliers are made at Rantoul Field, Illinois. Closeups show headlong plunges taken by the jumpers as they drop from a 3,000 foot height.

At West Wickam, Kent, England, motorcycle racers with passengers on the back seat indulge in a contest out in the hilly countryside.

Postmaster General Farley is shown starting the machines that will turn out 50,000,000 new 3 cent stamps to commemorate General Washington's proclamation of peace with the British in Newburgh, N. Y., in 1783.

Pictures of the Oxford-Cambridge boat race in England show 500,000 spectators lining the banks of the Thames, won by Cambridge.

Beatty Stars In Davis

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

Scarcely any plot, a minimum of love interest, only blank cartridges in the revolvers—but "The Big Cage," photoplay of the training of a wild animal act, will keep a lot of people hanging onto their chairs in the Davis and Sheridan Square this week. It has thrills few gangster films can equal.

The spotlight of the show is on Clyde Beatty, a slim, sinewy figure poised gracefully in the arena, a shielding chair and revolver balanced in one hand, as his long black whip bites out at snarling jaws. He gives a thrilling demonstration of courage and the beauty of a perfectly co-ordinated body in action.

The story concerns the effort of Beatty to put on the seemingly impossible act with 20 tigers and 20 lions in one cage. Raymond Hatton does a good job as a liquor-broken trainer.

"Hello, Sister," co-feature, is a rather light sketch with Zazu Pitts, James Dunn and Boots Mallory. The girls get picked up by Dunn and a boy friend (whom you can see is a rotter at heart), and who is just about successful in breaking up Dunn's romance—until the trapping of Boots in a burning room shows him to be the hero who still cares.

Helen Hayes Appealing As Nun

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Long before there was any war that fine romancer, F. Marion Crawford, wrote his story of "The White Sister," in which the girl who thinks her lover is dead takes irrevocable vows and is faithful to them after he turns up to claim her. A play was made from this material for Viola Allen, and a silent movie was made with Lillian Gish as the White Sister, and now a talkie is shown in the Penn Theater, which gives Helen Hayes another opportunity to exhibit her appealing beauty under deep emotional stress.

Mr. Seibel

Of course the Homers of Hollywood had to lug in the war, and make the hero an aviator, and since Clark Gable is the aforesaid hero there must also be a lot of preliminary carnival scenes to build up the love-story. All this is for the dear girls who want to see Clark making love.

Next there was a great chance for ecclesiastical pomp and ceremony. It has been done with much solemnity and reverence, so that seeing the picture is like going to church. With a musical setting of exceptional quality, with chasubles and tiaras absolutely correct and rituals performed with impressive dignity, going to "The White Sister" almost becomes a pilgrimage. That noble priest, Father Saracinesca, could easily convert Hollywood.

Fault might be found with the picture as a misrepresentation of Divine Providence. The scenario editor has piled up horrors so mercilessly that from the first automobile accident to the last air raid is one long parade of disaster. Many truly devout people would not recognize the God of Mercy in this scenario ranging from red carnage to black cholera.

But the acting of Helen Hayes is up to her very best, the acting of Clark Gable is better than his average, the scenic backgrounds are beautiful and haunting, the direction shows generalship of Napoleonic skill. It is a romance built upon a dramatic situation of great power, and it is admirably done—but why must there be zooming airplanes and singing batallions to key up the excitement? An earthquake or explosion would have been more original and novel.

Zasu and Slim In Warner

By JAMES A. BAUBIE

One of the impossibles in this world is to imagine anything funnier than Zazu Pitts' fidgity hands or Slim Summerville's "forsaken-calf" eyes, and when you have them both in the same picture, you have laughs. That is the situation in the current feature picture, "Out All Night," that opened in the Warner yesterday.

It's a comedy that utilizes every laugh trick in the bag—subtle brands, pure hokum and unadulterated slapstick. They're all in it, and they're tied together in a chain of developments that holds one's interest from the first "shot" of tall, gangling Slim being coddled by his exasperating mother to his "fade-out" in a bridal chamber at Niagara Falls.

Slim, as Donald, the pampered weakling, goes to a department store where his mother buys him an overcoat, and he falls in love with Bunny, played by Miss Pitts. But his mother won't let him go with girls, because "his health won't permit it." That is, until Ronald and Bunny get themselves locked up over night in the store's "Love Nest."

Bunny and Ronald are married and arrive at Niagara Falls, but the mother is there to meet them and give Ronald his pills. She has adjoining rooms in the hotel and decides to put her "boy" to bed with a hot water bottle and a mustard plaster. Bunny packs up and leaves.

As Slim lapses into his invalid chair and a divorce is arranged by his mother, mutual friends frame a plot to untie his apron strings.

Bunny is kidnaped in Chinatown before the eyes of her ailing husband and watchful mother-in-law. For the first time in his life, Ronald disobeys his mother and pursues the kidnapers. In the chase he discovers that he carries a terrific punch at the end of his right arm and starts in to use it.

Everybody seems pleased when he swaggeringly orders his mother home and shuffles off to Buffalo with Bunny.

A welcome change in shorts is the sketch featuring Ruth Etting in "Along Came Ruth."

MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN IN A POSE ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE HAPPY HOLIDAY OF WHICH THIS DAY IS THE EVE

Broadways Of the World — All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

GREAT EASTERN HOTEL, CALCUTTA, India.—I leave India for Burma tomorrow, and it strikes me now that this is as good a time as any to release a few hundred words on the confidence man of India. I spoke yesterday of the white panhandler, and how bad he is when compared to our expert Broadway variety. That's true. But the confidence men and pickpockets are in a different class entirely.

I love to boost America. I know that New York can boast of several pickpocket champions, and I'm quite certain that Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles are not far behind. The confidence game was supposed to have originated in America, and perhaps it did. But with tears in my eyes and at the risk of being called a traitor to our flag, I must state right here and now that the Indian is the champion chump-chaser of the world.

I was warned several times about the cleverness of the Indian pickpocket. I was told that he was uncanny in that direction and I was assured that he would get me once he was certain that I had anything for him to get.

So what did I do? I laughed. They weren't going to get me. No, sir. I was immune. Hadn't I ridden through the jungles of Brooklyn in the subway crowds without being clipped? Hadn't I spent 10 years in the Texas Guinan Club without so much as a check being lifted? Hadn't I mingled with any number of newspapermen and lawyers? No, sir. Clever or not, they weren't going to get Hellinger.

Well, they got me. It happened at a race track in this very town. I removed some notes from my wallet in order to make a bet. I didn't notice anyone watching me and, even if I had, it wouldn't have made the slightest bit of difference. Because my wallet went back into my rear trouser pocket, which was securely buttoned down. I then stood with the crowd at the rail to watch the race.

A few minutes after the race was over I discovered the loss. They had cut a hole in my trousers and removed the wallet without ever touching the buttons. And if it hadn't been for the sudden draft, I might still think I had the wallet.

Too clever, these Indians . . .

You've heard, of course, of the money machine racket in New York. It's one of the oldest of the Broadway rackets, and it has been practiced with great success all over the nation for many years. It's still going strong in spite of the publicity it's had, and a month seldom goes by that you don't read of someone else who has been fleeced by the money machine.

The racket is simplicity itself. The victim, generally chosen because he, too, has a touch of larceny in his make-up, is introduced to a mysterious foreigner who has invented a remarkable machine. You give him $10 bills. He puts them in the machine. And, presto, they come out $100 bills. You begin to believe and, when you find the money cannot be detected by the banks, you are convinced. You finally turn over $20,000 or $30,000 to have it multiplied by 10 in the machine—and that's the last you see of either the money, the mysterious foreigner or the machine.

It will amuse the racket boys in America to learn that this con game had its origin in India, and that the phony boys in this town have been practicing it for years. Here's the way it goes over here:

The Indian racketeer picks his victims, who are usually women. Dressed in nothing but a loin cloth and looking very bold indeed, he enters the courtyard of the house he has chosen. His elderly appearance and his air of holiness gets him by the gate without any trouble whatsoever. He's a sort of Tammany Young of India.

Squatting in the correct Indian fashion and juggling the dried half of a large cocoanut shell before him, he begins to chant something fairly holy. Before long, because charity is your passport to the first stop on the way to the Indian heaven, a female head appears at one of the barred windows and an anna falls into the Yogi's bowl. An anna is about a cent and three-quarters in our money.

Get the connection now. The cocoanut shell is the con guy's money machine—and the first coin is the bait. The holy man looks up, nods, smiles, rattles the bowl—and the one anna has turned into two.

The damsel disppears quickly and summons two or three others. They too toss small coins, and the Yogi doubles the money without any effort at all. Wonderful! Not only is this a very holy man, but he has the power to make two grow where there was but one before. Remarkable!

Before you know it, they have him inside the building. One of the girls—showing you that woman's instincts are the same the world over—gives him a large coin and asks him to do that. Does that trouble the holy man? Not at all. He places the large coin in his money machine, covers it with a piece of cloth, mutters a few "abba-dabbas" and "presto, changeos"—and there are two large coins instead of one. While the women are marveling, he departs—taking, of course, the psychological moment.

A few days later he is back again. Definitely sold by this time, he is begged to enter the house, immediately. He tells the women that they have been very kind to him and that, to repay them, he has returned to make them all very wealthy. If they will fetch all their jewels and put them into his magic bowl, they will be doubled in a few minutes.

Then follows the pay-off. Convinced of the Yogi's holiness and not at all unwilling to double their jewels, they do as he tells them. They dump all their precious jewels in the bowl and he again covers them with a shawl. But this time the shawl covers both the jewels and himself. After awhile he pauses in his mutterings, pokes his head out and requests some gangajal, which is the sacred water of the Ganges.

The women are troubled. They have none in the house. The Yogi is angry. What—no gangajal? Then he must get some immediately. Bidding the women to watch the bowl and shawl and warning them on no account to look inside, he leaves the spot.

The rest you know. When the shawl is yanked from the bowl several hours later, the jewels are gone. And the Yogi is never seen again in that vicinity. At least, he had better not be.

Is there any difference between that racket and the Broadway money machine? I don't think so . . .

I wish I had the space here to go into a few more of these cases, but I'm afraid I haven't. I will say, though, that India is—to my mind—the greatest spot in the world for con men of every description. I have always been of the opinion that America excelled in rackets. Once again I learn how completely unwise I really am.

Kay, Walter Teamed

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 15. — In the spotlight for his outstanding performance in "Gabriel Over the Whitehouse," Walter Huston will be given the masculine lead in "Strange Rhapsody," the picture for which Kay Francis is going over to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Once again, Huston will play a public figure, but this time it is the chief justice of a Balkan nation. "Strange Rhapsody" is from the European drama by Alexander Hunjadi. It is the triangle romance of a rich Hungarian, his wife and a prominent jurist.

This same picture will serve as a vehicle for Nils Asther, whose checkered career is one of the tragedies of the talkies. Nils Asther will play the other angle of the triangle, Kay Francis, as the wife of Ned Sparks, and C. Henry Gordon are to have prominent parts.

Air Thrills In Stanley Movie

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Grand picture for exciting moments, this "Central Airport," Stanley screen feature that has Richard Barthelmess as its star. Not since Barthelmess jumped from ice-cake to ice-cake, to save Lillian Gish at the brink of a river cataract, in "Way Down East," has there been as thrilling a screen rescue as he performs in "Central Airport." And there's a new angle, too, to the pathetic fadeout, as established for pattern by Emil Jannings, in "The Way of All Flesh," and Charlie Chaplin, in "The Circus," each a gesture of renunciation. Where they walked into dimness and distance, Barthelmess gets into the cockpit of an airplane and soars away. He seems happy enough, but the spectator is apt to be slightly tearful, or at least lump-in-the-throaty at his departure.

Although "Central Airport" is the brother-against-brother theme again, it loses not a bit of interest through that fact. Barthelmess is a commercial aviator who is "grounded" after a crackup, but later he becomes a stunt flyer in an air circus in which Sally Eilers is a parachute jumper. In love with her, he tells her marriage is not for a man in so risky a business, so she becomes the bride of his brother, played by Tom Brown, also an aviator and also deeply in love with Sally.

They meet again after years, too late to rectify romantic mistakes, but just in time for Barthelmess to make a spectacular rescue of pilot Tom Brown and his passengers from an airplane downed in a turbulent sea by a terrific storm.

As a whole "Central Airport" is an interesting love story set to music of the droning whirr of airplane propellers, and there is a lot of thrilly flying in it, including the crash of a stuntman's plane in flames. The acting is nicely productions as "Sunnyside Up" paced, and the characters are thereby made believable. Barthelmess is mannishly sincere, Tommy is boyishly impulsive and likeable and Miss Eilers is lovably feminine—and nervy, too, being a parachute jumper.

NO FEAR SUNFIELD WILL HURT LLOYD

A DETAIL OF Pirate play watched with interest as the Bucs move from park to park during the early weeks of the season will be the way Lloyd Waner meets the strange angles, lights and shadows in left field at the various grounds after playing steadily in center. The big question centers around that sun garden at Forbes Field. It has to do not only with the way he will play the difficult field, but what effect, if any, it will have on his hitting. Some other left fielders here have complained that it hurt their batting.

Lloyd Waner

President Benswanger assures that the management considered that side in deciding to move Waner from center to left, and hasn't the slightest fear that Lloyd's form will be affected at any time. Such a valuable asset would not have been risked if Manager Gibson had feared any harmful results. The player himself sees no danger in the sunfield. He was not only willing but eager to play it. In fact, it has just come out that Manager Gibson never had to tell Lloyd to move out of his old field. When the first practice drill was ordered, the younger Waner grabbed his glove and trotted to left field without orders, as if he felt that that was where be belonged.

BILL KILLEFER agrees with the majority of the dopesters that the Yanks have the American League pennant almost as good as lashed to the mast with the season merely begun, but he takes violent exception to the estimates that put his own club as low as seventh.

Killefer forecasts that the Browns will be the surprise club of the league. He says they are young, fast and resourceful, have power and pitching, will be strengthened by West, Reynolds, Brown and Coffman, and with fair luck will wind up in the first division.

THE SKIPPER OF the Browns has high hopes that Jimmy Levey, his Pittsburgh shortstop, will have a big year, continuing the left-hand batting stance to which he was shifted from the right side of the plate last season in order to get full dividends on his speed.

In 1932, the change enabled Levey to boost his average 71 points, as he hit .280 as compared with his mark of .209 in 1931. For a large part of the season he was above the .300 line. Killefer looks for further improvement this year and sees Jimmy in the select circle.

THE PIRATES WON'T be surprised if another famous baseball figure of yesteryear comes back to the game one day in the person of Mike Donlin. In their meetings with the old clouter while training in California they found him looking great and eager to return to baseball as a coach for some major league club. Possibly by next year room will be made for him somewhere. Donlin has gained in weight and appears to have licked the illness that afflicted him for a long time. Recently he gave evidence of his good condition by playing nine innings for a picked team against one of the colleges of Southern California. Mike played first base, and in addition to putting up a fine defensive game he contributed the high spot of the day by pulling off a delayed steal. It was the first time the collegians ever had seen anything of the kind, and they were all wrought up over what was to them an entirely new wrinkle in baseball.

Lou Gehrig

LOU GEHRIG TODAY rounds out another century in his consecutive playing streak. This afternoon's game against the A's is the 1,200th American League championship contest in which the Yankee first baseman has played without a miss since he started his long run on June 1, 1925.

Gehrig had 1,197 straight games to his credit at the close of last season. Before the present race is over, if there is no interruption, he will beat the world record of 1,307 successive contests, set by Everett Scott from June 20, 1916, to May 5, 1925. The Yankee iron man needs 108 more after today to set a new mark.

BIG BOB JOHNSON, brother of Roy, of the Red Sox, and who has supplanted Ed Coleman in right field for the A's on the strength of his batting ability, is built to hit. He stands six feet and looks like a tall poplar. The Johnsons are part Cherokee. Bob was once an Oregon lumberjack.

"And he has another thing in his favor besides his build," comments Hollis Thurston, Brooklyn pitcher, who knows a lot about the Pacific Coast League. "That is, he was let out by the San Francisco club two years ago. Almost everybody San Francisco lets go amounts to something. Look at Lloyd Waner and Tony Lazzeri."

THOUGH BLOOD LINES continue to play a major role in light harness racing, W. H. Gocher, a leading authority on the subject, observes that equine families which for a time dominated the field have faded out and never have returned. He recalls an era when the Hambletonian, Mambrino Chief, Morgan and Clay lines were the leaders, but now he finds that all of them, with the exception of the Hambletonian, have dropped out. The Mambrino Chief line went out with Minor Heir, the fastest descendant on the male side from Mambrino King. The last of the Morgan trotters traced to the sons of Daniel Lambert. The Clays disappeared when Hopeful and Captain Lewis were retired. Two of the Hambletonian lines were continued by Peter the Great. At present the Peter the Great family dominates the harness game.

ONE VETERAN SPORTS observer expresses the opinion that there is no call for the concern manifested by the authorities in some pastimes over the presence and the sale of beer, or its possible effects on athletes who may feel inclined to indulge in it.

It is his belief that the athletes will not bother much with 3.2 beer. As a rule, when desiring to imbibe a stimulant, they have gone for ale, which is heavier in fat, sugar and alcoholic content, thus not only relieving the strain of fatigue, but also restoring lost energy.

THE FIRST COLLEGE regatta ever held on the Olympic course at Long Beach, rated the finest in the world, is scheduled for today, with California, Washington and U. C. L. A. competing in the feature eight-oar event. California and Washington have had top-flight crews for many seasons, but U. C. L. A. threatens to give them a stiff fight. In practice, the Bruins have made better time over the course than the Bears made in winning the Olympic title last summer.

The big Olympic event was the only one ever held on the course, and the eight-oar final in which California won the championship was one of the most thrilling ever seen anywhere. Only a little more than a boat length separated the first and last crews in the four that had qualified for the race. It is not generally known that the British crew could have protested Italy for crowding over into the former's lane. But the British were good enough sportsmen to admit that they could not have passed the Italians even if they had had an ocean of room.

Max Baer

THOUGH MAX BAER says he will reduce his 228 pounds to 210 before he steps into the ring with Max Schmeling on June 8, experienced boxing men are shaking their heads. They doubt the wisdom of taking off a great deal of the poundage. Baer is so well proportioned that he does not appear to be 18 pounds above fighting weight. So good a judge of condition as Johnny Dundee, after looking over the Livermore Larruper, is of the opinion that Baer is in shape to fight at short notice, and expresses the fear that he may go stale unless he takes the utmost care during his proposed five weeks of training. It is difficult to hold Max back. He is much like Jack Dempsey in that he is bubbling over with nervous energy, can't sit still more than a couple of minutes, and insists on popping into a gymnasium for a workout at every opportunity. Bob McAlester and Mike Cantwell will have the job of steering him through his training work safely and keeping him from overdoing things. When he first boxed in the East with Ernie Schaaf on December 19, 1930, Baer weighed 202. He was at the same figure when he fought Paulino Uzcudun 20 rounds at Reno on July 4, 1931, but at the finish of the battle he was down to 192, losing an average of half a pound per round.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: BASKING IN STRANGE GLORY—Many books of reference still confuse the carrier with the homing pigeon, although the two are entirely distinct species. The so-called carrier pigeon has been misnamed. It is a larger bird, whose lack of homing ability is due to excessive eye ceres and wattles which interfere with its eyesight. The homing bird's head is convex, its back deep and wide, its bill sturdy and the neck well feathered, its strong chest broad and full. Its abdomen is reduced to the smallest proportions, enabling it to fly long distances and to survey the world with brilliant eyes, piercing and all-seeing. THE TINIEST STEAM ENGINE—This ingenious contrivance is only one-half of an inch long and weighs 1/2925 of a pound. The flywheel is about one-fifth of an inch in diameter and its piston rod one-eighth of an inch long. It can turn over as high as 15,000 r. p. m.

HEINIE MEINE TO HURL FOR CORSAIRS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, April 15.—Gibby's Pirates had that up-and-at-'em spirit today as they made ready to tackle Charley Grimm's Cubs this afternoon. The two teams tangled eight times in California, with the Cubs winning five of the engagements, but times have changed since those earthquake days, although the Buccos would like to give the Bears another shake on their home orchard.

The first clash of a scheduled three-game set will bring together two veterans of the right-hand pitching art, Heinie Meine, Crown Prince of Luxemburg, and Charley Root, will make their respective starts in the inaugural. A goodly crowd is expected to attend the Saturday frolic if the weather is propitious.

The Bucs were feeling chipper this morning because they slept in regular beds last night. When their contest with the Reds was called off on account of rain yesterday, the Pittsburgh stars hustled to a Chicago-bound train and landed here before 10 o'clock.

With the opposing Cubs, hailed as co-favorites for the National League flag with the Pirates, the impending series should be loaded with fireworks. The Cubs and Pirates have developed a tense rivalry in the past 10 years and it shows no signs of being at ebb tide in the current campaign.

The Buccos are right in the pink physically and their esprit du corps is just right. The two victories in Cincinnati brought out some of the best pitching the races have thus far developed. Bill Swift strutted his stuff with a four-hit game in the opener and Larry French picked up the baton the next day and directed the same kind of a rendition.

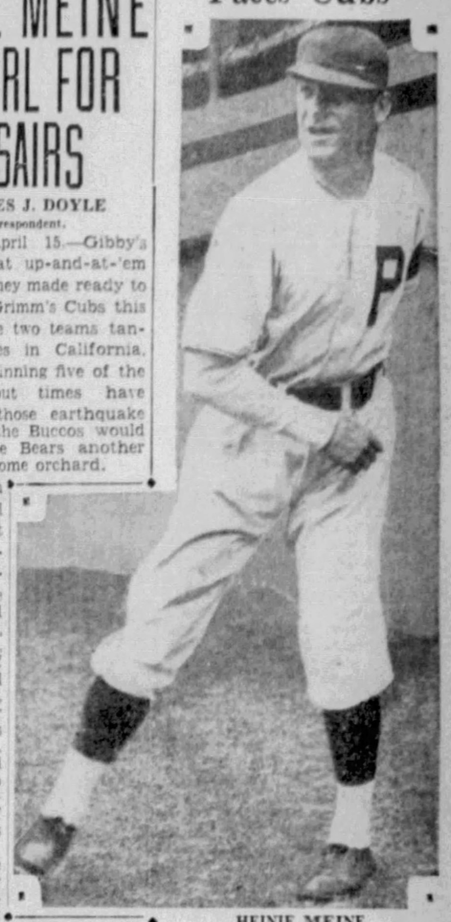
GIBSON PLEASED

Needless to say the performances of the two young pitchers brought a glow to the ruddy countenance of George Gibson, who has been saying all along that everything would be o. k. So far the Cubs have not missed Kiki Cuyler, who is lost for many weeks with a broken ankle. Frank Demaree is filling the centerfield bill in a satisfactory manner.

The Bruins broke even in their two-game joust with the Cardinals, but they had good pitching in both contests.

It is likely the Pirates will have to look at the slants of Lonnie Warneke tomorrow, but the ace pitcher of the Heydler loop holds no terrors for the Buccaneers. They seem to know how to solve Lonnie.

Faces Cubs



HEINIE MEINE

Pitcher Meine makes his first start of the regular season for the Pirates in the opening game against the Cubs in Chicago today. Swift and French have turned in four-hit victories in the games played thus far. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

CARNERA EASY, MAXIE SAYS

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling is looking past his forthcoming match with Max Baer to another meeting with Jack Sharkey for the world's heavyweight championship in September.

The German puncher thinks Sharkey is a virtual certainty to "take" Primo Carnera again and if he does, Schmeling is ready and anxious for another crack at the Boston Tar. He said on his arrival here yesterday:

"Carnera is in no mental state to wage a great fight. I don't think he has any money and the suit he lost in London recently will not help him either. Worried fighters are not good fighters."

MAX IN CONDITION

Schmeling, apparently in great condition and tipping the beam at his best weight, 190 pounds, declined to venture any prediction as to the outcome of his match with Baer at the Yankee Stadium, June 8, under Jack Dempsey's promotorial banner. He saw Baer fight Johnny Risko in Cleveland and thought the Californian a "big strong fellow, a good right-hand puncher.

Schmeling now is at odds with Madison Square Garden, which is promoting the Carnera-Sharkey match June 29, but says he'd have no hesitancy about signing with the Garden for a Sharkey match in September. He said:

"If Joe Jacobs makes the match, why not? I do what Jacobs says. He knows his business."

About the political situation in Germany, Schmeling was less eager to talk, but he said he had seen no instances of persecution of Jews there. He added:

"Sport is international. It has nothing to do with politics, races and creeds. I saw no cruelties against Jews in Germany. My country never was more quiet and peaceful. Many of my neighbors in Berlin are Jews and my manager, Joe Jacobs, is a Jew. There is no question between sport and a national problem."

HITLER FIGHT FAN

Chancellor Hitler, he said, is a fight fan and soon will announce a program for compulsory boxing in elementary schools, high schools and colleges.

LOTT, SUTTER GAIN FINAL

PINEHURST, N. C., April 15.—(AP.)—Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, and George M. Lott, of Chicago, two veteran court players, meet here today for the North and South tennis championship.

Survivors of a field that included several of the nation's ranking stars, each topped off preliminary play with straight-set victories in yesterday's semi-finals.

Sutter, playing a hard, smashing game, turned back J. Gilbert Hall, of Orange, N. J., 6-3, 8-6, 6-4. Lott beat Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Hall had small success in his net play against Sutter and the New Orleans youth, seeded first, had better luck returning drives.

Lott, seeded fifth, was too strong for the diminutive Grant, although the Georgian apparently was not at his best. Grant improved in the final set and Lott had him at match point, 5-1, three times before ending the set.

Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. P. B. Hawk, of New York, advanced to the finals in the women's singles. Mrs. Van Ryn defeated Miss Eliza Coxe, of Asheville, 6-1, 7-5. Mrs. Hawk eliminated Miss Florence Le Boutillier, of Westbury, L. I., 6-1, 5-7, 8-6. The finals will be played today.

W. Va. Ring Meet Gets Under Way

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 15.—(AP.)—Thirty-two amateur fighters took part in the first eliminations last night of the Southern West Virginia Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by the local American Legion.

Survivors of the first round will meet Monday to determine the champions of the various classes. Last night's winners follow:

118-pound class—Billy Miller, St. Albans, and Jack Martin, of Helen.
135-pound class—Gus Ashley, Charleston and Delmer Hudson, Spring Hill.
147-pound class—Andy Ornbaum, South Charleston; Roy Scott, Chesapeake; William Gibson, Charleston; C. Jones, Charleston; Eddie Ayres, South Charleston; William Whittaker, Owens; William Gibson, Charleston and Andy Ornbaum, South Charleston.
160-pound class—Frank van Valkenburgh, Charleston and Jimmy Hudman.

SPORT VIGNETTES

A bouquet, if you please, for John Jay Burke, former city manager of county parks, whose idea, first broached during his talk with the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE a few weeks ago, is to be carried out at the Schenley Park links this season. . . . It has to do with the closing of the roadway running through the fairways of the Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 holes, thereby eliminating the danger of injuries to pedestrians and autoists. . . . Edward G. Lang, director of public works, has ordered the change.

J. J. Burke

Ellsworth Vines, national singles and doubles champion, and also holder of the Wimbledon championship, will concentrate on the job of bringing back the Davis Cup to the United States this year. . . . Relative to the controversy about an open tournament involving amateurs and professionals, he says he ranks at least seven amateur stars over the leading professional, Bill Tilden, and says Tilden, at his age, couldn't stand the strain of an open tournament, although he might easily beat any top-ranking amateur on any given day. . . . The amateurs he ranks at the top of the heap are Cochet and Borotra, of France; Allison, Sutter, and, of, course, himself, of the United States; Perry, of England, and Crawford, of Australia.

The New York Giants haven't won a pennant since 1924, so what this year, with so many strong outfits in the chase for the National League bunting?

Danny Devlin, recovering in the Mercy Hospital from a fractured jaw, suffered in his bout with Tiger Joe Randall at the Arena a week ago, says he received the injury in the second round, although the bout was not stopped until the seventh. . . . Incidentally, it was a short left that did the trick, and not a right swing, as was supposed. . . . His manager, Pop O'Donnell, says the local fans did not see the real Danny Devlin in this bout, and he plans to bring Danny back here this summer, after the jaw is mended, and continue his quest for a bout with Ted Yarosz.

Black Bill is dead by his own hand, from a bullet wound inflicted in his stomach with suicidal intent, as a result of blindness contracted from resin on an opponent's gloves. . . . All of which is a reminder that for several years our own Jack Zivic has been agitating the total elimination of resin from boxing rings. . . . He claims the use of properly corrugated boxing shoes, which prevent boxers from slipping on the canvas, will make this possible.—HARRY KECK.

HOCKEY STAR MAY RETIRE

NEW YORK, April 15.—(INS.)—Capt. Bill Cook, National Hockey League scoring king and the man whose goal in Toronto Thursday night won the Stanley Cup for the New York Rangers, wants to quit hockey and retire to his wheat farm in Saskatchewan.

This news was brought here by Ching Johnson, Ranger defenseman, who is en route to his father's ranch near Los Angeles. All the other Rangers scattered to their homes in Canada.

Coach Les Patrick and the owners of the Rangers will make every effort to persuade Cook to play next year, Johnson said.

Eight Clubs Form New Western Loop

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 15.—(AP.)—Following weeks of negotiations, the Western League has been reorganized as an eight-club baseball circuit, with four former members and four teams from the Western Association of 1932.

The league, a class A circuit, will be composed of St. Joseph, Omaha, Neb., Des Moines, Ia., and Wichita, Kan., as the holdovers and Springfield and Joplin, Mo., and Hutchinson and Topeka, Kan., as the new members.

CRACK CREWS RACE TODAY

LONG BEACH, Cal., April 15.—(AP.)—Ky Ebright brought his California oarsmen back to the scene of their 1932 Olympic games triumph, dubious as to their chances of victory today over Washington and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Contrary to Ebright, Coach Goodsell, of U. C. L. A., is inclined to favor the Bears to win. He thinks they stand a good chance to atone for the seven-length defeat of the California varsity shell by Washington over a three-mile course at Oakland a week ago.

Coach Al Ulbrickson, of the Huskies' doesn't propose to allow his men to become overconfident. He says the Californians were caught in an overconfident mood a week ago, and will be in a better frame of mind today.

TIGERS, NAVY READY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 15.—(AP.)—The untried Princeton and Navy crews are ready for their initial race of the year today over the placid Severn. The races consist of both varsity and junior varsity events over the Henley distance.

Princeton's coach, Gordon Sikes, is optimistic, but Charles (Buck) Walsh, of Navy, has expressed the opinion his team was not up to scratch. Coach Walsh predicted, however, the race would be close.

Wrestling Promoter Fights State Ban

CHICAGO, April 15.—(AP.)—The order of the Illinois State Athletic Commission barring all professional wrestling from this state indefinitely following the match between Joe Savoldi and Jim Londos a week ago has met with legal interference.

John (Doc) Krone, Chicago wrestling promoter, yesterday obtained a temporary injunction restraining the commission from stopping his scheduled mat shows at the Coliseum, May 4 and May 23.

Joe Triner, chairman of the commission, said he would go to the Attorney General's office at Springfield early next week to seek to have the writ dissolved.

Chilly Sauce

Manager George Gibson has arranged to have Honus Wagner's younger daughter, Virginia, throw out the first ball at the Forbes Field opener Thursday. The 10-year-old lass has inherited a lot of her dad's throwing ability. She cut loose with a fast one when they started the festivities last year.

If the Pirates hold that suggested track and field day at Forbes Field, the members of the Bucco brigade will give big odds on Larry French in the fungo contest. Larry is hitting them further than ever. He speeded up employment in the ball factories by his antics on the barnstorming trips. It has been hinted that the manufacturers have him ribbed up to lose the apples.

O'Brien and Kelly sounds a bit like a baseball battery, but now it designates the mayors of a couple of "hick" towns—New York and Chicago. Maybe that's the reason for the so-called shortage of Irish diamond stars.

TRADED STARS PLAY STELLAR ROLES FOR NEW CLUBS

GROVE, RUFFING STAR AS A'S, YANKS WIN

Associated Press.

Judging from the earliest returns, the major league ball clubs accomplished a few good strokes of business in their dickering in ivory during the winter. The season is only three days old but already a good many of the players who shifted their allegiance in the off-season have had opportunities to shine for ther new clubs.

In the first couple of games Fred Lindstrom, Babe Herman, Al Simmons, Sam West, Carl Reynolds, Jimmy Dykes and a few others who figured in the winter trading got in some heavy stickwork; Eddie Durham, Earl Whitehill and others displayed excellent pitching work; the Brooklyn acquisitions, Jake Flowers and Joe Judge, turned in some snappy fielding along with the Athletics' collection of rookies, who didn't do much else in their first two games against Washington.

RECRUITS SHOW CLASS

A couple of other recruits came out into the spotlight yesterday to show that they, too, may figure in the battling for the two pennants this season.

Only three games escaped postponement but they saw Walter Beck, Brooklyn's big recruit from Memphis, pitch brilliantly in his National League debut; Frank Higgins, of the Athletics, add his name to the home run list on his third day in the big league; Walter Stewart, formerly of the Browns, give Washington some more good flinging, and Johnny Hodapp, who was with the White Sox last year, continue his effective work for the Boston Red Sox.

A couple of veterans, however, put on the real show of the day as Lou Gehrig and Charley Ruffing combined to give the New York Yankees a 6-2 victory over Boston. Ruffing, locked in a flinging duel with Bob Weiland, in which each allowed five hits, saw the game go into the ninth inning tied at 2-2, due to Gehrig's second homer in two games. Ruffing took things into his own hands after an error and two walks had crammed the sacks with two out. He smacked Weiland's first pitch into the bleachers for a homer that ended the game.

BECK TAMES PHILS

Beck's feat consisted of limiting the heavy-hitting Phillies to seven hits and whiffing five of them while the Dodgers hammered out a 7-to-1 victory.

Robert Moses Grove, the Athletics' steller southpaw, stilled the Senators' bats after two straight victories and gave the rebuilt Mackmen a 5-to-1 triumph. He was reached for only six hits and pitched shutout ball up to the last frame.

The New York Giants set a new baseball record by postponing a Friday game and a Saturday game on the same day. Snow kept them idle again in Boston yesterday and there was no prospect of playing today's game there, so they called off both contests yesterday and went to New York to work on their own diamond in preparation for tomorrow's clash with Brooklyn.

Baseball Briefs

TOLEDO, O.—(AP.)—The Toledo club of the American Association has announced acquisition of Pitcher Forrest Twogood from the Cleveland Indians; Catcher Bob Asbjornson, from the Cincinnati Reds, and Infielder Mike Bellande, from the New Orleans Pelicans. Pitcher Bill Rabb of the Mud Hens was released to Knoxville.

CHICAGO.—(AP.)—Walter Miller, who once pitched fairly well for the Cleveland Indians, has been signed by the Chicago White Sox and ordered to report today for the series at Detroit. Manager Lew Fonseca needed a southpaw, Miller applied and got the chance.

NEW YORK.—(AP.)—Allen (Dusty) Cooke, outfielder, has been released outright by the New York Yankees to their Newark farm in the International League. Cooke, who did not play last year because of an injured arm, played in 27 games in 1931 and batted .333.

PHILADELPHIA.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers have lost the services of First Baseman Joe Judge for a week. Judge suffered spike wounds on his shin and a twisted ankle when Dick Bartell collided with him in the seventh inning of the Phillies-Dodger game yesterday. Del Bissonette will replace him.

ST. LOUIS.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Browns have announced the release on option of Robert Cooney, righthanded pitcher, to San Antonio of the Texas League.

The Browns also announced the purchase from the New York Yankees of Ed Wells, lanky southpaw hurler.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, April 15.—When a New York bookie quotes odds of 500 to 1 the Red Sox won't win the pennant, that is too much. It ain't even a 500 to 1 bet that Omaha won't cop the American League flag.

Way back when I was pitching for the White Sox they called 'em the Hitless Wonders because we could snag three or four runs on a wild pitch and a bunt. We didn't look very strong on paper, but we didn't play our games on paper—we played 'em on a ball field. That was the season the bookies bet we would finish in Lake Michigan. Well, we not only won the pennant, but we made chimpanzees out of the Cubs and won the world series.

So don't sneer at the Red Sox. Remember great oaks from little acorns grow. Rome wasn't built in a day and Napoleon only started out as a corporal. Gosh, I can almost write like Mr. Brisbane!

Boxer With Broken Jaw Strums Away Time in Hospital

ROY DECK — HARRY MORRIS — PAT MANION — POP O'DONNELL — DANNY DEVLIN

Although he suffered a broken jaw in his bout with Tiger Randall at the Arena last week, Danny Devlin, Allentown (Pa.) boxer, is the "life of the party" as he awaits recovery in the Mercy Hospital. He plays four musical instruments, and when someone slipped him a guitar yesterday he began to do his stuff for the entertainment of other patients. O'Donnell is his uncle and manager, a man of 60, with 40 years of minstrelsy and other work as a thespian behind him. Many's the time he played Pittsburgh in the old days, when he was known on the stage as Barney Castle. This is an exclusive Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

JACK AND MAX LOOK ALIKE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Local boxing fans will have an opportunity to compare the real Jack Dempsey in the flesh with the so-called German Dempsey, Max Schmeling, one of his successors as the heavyweight champion, when the pair enter the Motor Square Garden ring Monday night for an exhibition of three rounds by Schmeling, with Dempsey serving as referee.

Schmeling first met Dempsey in Berlin in 1925, when Dempsey still was champion and was appearing in exhibitions in Europe. Their similarity of looks was remarked then, but little did either dream that Schmeling was destined to succeed to the mantle worn by Dempsey. Maxie since has lost his crown to Jack Sharkey, and hopes to regain it in a third meeting with the former sailor next year.

Maxie arrived from Germany yesterday and will be banqueted in New York tonight. He will arrive in Pittsburgh with Dempsey Monday morning and depart following his exhibition for Boston, where he shows Tuesday night. He boxes Max Baer in the Yankee Stadium, New York, June 8. Sharkey boxes Primo Carnera on June 29, and the winners of the two bouts will be paired for the title next year.

The 10-round bouts and three six-rounders will make up the card at the Arena, on the North Side, next Friday night. Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, the only man who ever has won over Ted Yarosz, is in the main bout with Tiger Joe Randall, local Negro welterweight, and Charley Baxter boxes Louie Severo in the other 10-rounder.

BECKLEY GETS NEW STARS

BECKLEY, W. Va., April 15.—(AP.)—Returning from a scouting trip into southern ivory markets, President Doff Daniel and Manager Eli Harris, of Beckley's Black Knights entry in the Mid-Atlantic League, brought four men and promise of eight more.

The Black Knights were forced into the highways and byways this year for diamond material. Daniel and Harris reported a highly successful invasion for foreign territory.

Donald Robershaw, sensational young second sacker of last year's Black Knight nine, returned to fill the shortstop position this year. His fielding provided one of the bright bits of seasonal promise at Memphis during the training sessions.

Peter Beam, who won 16 games on the mound for Beckley in 1931, will be back this year. He was with Montreal in the International League last year.

Kerby Farrell, 19-year-old first sacker, and Ireland Terhune, right-handed hurler, who has been playing with the Southern Association, came along with Daniel and Harris. Others will be here shortly. Training began yesterday.

Indoor Polo Titles At Stake Tonight

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP.)—Seeking its fourth national interscholastic indoor polo championship since 1928, Lawrenceville, N. J., School will battle a plucky trio from Culver Military Academy here tonight.

The visitors from the Mid-West will be unquestioned underdogs, for not only will they be called upon to check Lawrenceville's highly-polished attack, but they'll have to attempt that difficult feat with borrowed ponies.

The Eastern championship tourney likewise will come to an end tonight with Los Nanduces battling Aknusti for the open title. The winner will qualify for the national championships now in progress at Chicago.

ST. CHARLES, Mo., April 15.—(AP.)—George Saling, 23, famous Olympic hurdler of the University of Iowa, died here today of injuries received when his automobile crashed into a truck near Troy, Mo., at midnight last night.

Saling and two companions, E. D. Youngblood, of Kirksville, and Arthur Bumstead, of Delaware, O., were driving to St. Louis, where Saling was to give an exhibition of hurdling at the Maplewood relays tomorrow.

About 10 miles out of Troy, Mo., the automobile, with Saling at the wheel, struck a truck with which run out of gas. Saling received four fractured ribs, and physicians said his heart was displaced. His two companions were uninjured. Saling's home is at Corydon, Ia. He was one of the outstanding hurdlers of the country and was a member of the U. S. W. E. BENSWANGER, PRESIDENT OF THE PIRATES, FEELS THAT WAY ABOUT THEM

Back home at his desk after making the spring training trip with the Pittsburgh club and staying over for the opening series in Cincinnati, President Benswanger is full of optimism. He's not worrying—unlike most magnates, he is willing to admit his outfit is pretty good and that its pennant chances are all that has been claimed for them. How does he feel? Well, can't you see from this Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture that he's whistlin'?

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET
Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion.

A fatal thing in a game of golf is to have somebody call attention to a sand trap, a tree or some other obstacle because the mere suggestion seems to attract the golf ball to the particular object mentioned, and that is true also of any other suggestion that might be made.

A few days ago, I was playing in a four-ball match that I wanted very badly to win. With four holes remaining to be played, my partner and I stood 2 up. One of our opponents placed a second shot 10 feet from the hole, and my partner, after a fine second, found his ball on the back edge with a downhill putt of 30 feet over a slippery surface. I was out of the play because my tee shot was trapped and there was nothing to do but to hope my partner would go down in two putts.

Francis Ouimet

Our two opponents stood side by side, and one of them said in a voice that could be heard many yards away:

"This green is very slow."

Of course, it was obvious he was trying to disturb my partner, who had, as I have said, a downhill putt on a fast green. The other opponent said, in a casual sort of manner, as an answer to the fact that the green was slow:

"Is that so?"

SUGGESTIONS UPSETTING

My partner listened carefully, but said nothing. He studied his line of putt and also examined the territory between his ball and the green. A fine putter always, he tapped his ball and it came down that sloping, skiddy incline at a splendid pace, and very nearly dropped in for a 3, which was just exactly what our opponents hoped would not happen. The hole was halved in 4, which clinched the match.

Ordinarily suggestions of this kind will upset even the most experienced golfer, and that is probably one of the reasons why in the etiquet of golf it is decreed that nothing shall be done to disturb an opponent. To be sure, incidents such as I related occur only in friendly matches, where the best of feeling prevails. This sort of golf is relaxing and it removes much of the high pressure that exists in a strenuous competition.

In that same game above referred to, an interesting situation developed on one hole. One of my opponents had a stroke coming to him and his fourth shot was less than two feet from the cup. My ball in three was two and one-half feet away, and it was imperative that I hole my putt for a 4 because I was certain my opponent would sink his. There was much conversation as to the difficulty of the two putts, and, in my desire to put the match on ice, I putted quickly and did not get within a mile of the hole. Turning to my opponent, I called his attention to a roll that did not exist. He, too, was anxious to hole his putt, was influenced by the non-existent roll, and did not come within inches of holing out his short putt. Of course, he was mortified, because his mistake cost him the match.

CASE OF DIEGEL

Suggestions such as these are poisonous and can be the cause of more wasted shots than anything else because they create doubt in the mental attitude of the player and spoil his confidence.

A few years ago, Leo Diegel stood a fine chance of winning the Open championship. A friend of his happened to be carrying his clubs, and, at a very critical stage of the game, advised Diegel to use a certain club, while Diegel's mind was made up to use another. With his confidence shattered, Diegel made a wild second that put him into all sorts of trouble, and, instead of getting a par 4, or at worst a 5, he ended up with a disastrous 7, which cost him, without doubt, the United States Open title, an honor which has since escaped him.

CITY TO STAGE NET CONFAB

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Official notice confirming the award of the 1934 United States Lawn Tennis Association meeting to the Steel City has been received at Pittsburgh Tennis Association headquarters from Executive Secretary Edward B. Moss of the U. S. L. T. A. According to word from Moss yesterday, the conclave will be held on the afternoon of either Saturday, February 3, or Saturday, February 10, in line with the regulation of the net body that the session be staged between the first and the fifteenth days of February each year.

It is customary for the general get-together to be preceded by an executive committee conference the prior evening, which means that festivities here will get under way on either February 2 or 9 and extend over February 4 or 5, for it is the intention of the district association to arrange a program adequately covering the entire week-end.

TO NAME COMMITTEE

P. T. A. President J. Phillips Davis has promised that within the next few days a special committee will be announced for the purpose of devising ways and means of entertaining racquet visitors from all sections of the country.

Meanwhile, despite intervention of the Easter holiday, aspirants to positions on local college net squads continue their conditioning process with informal workouts. The Pitt and Duquesne outfits, slated to open here against Grove City and West Virginia, respectively, next Saturday, must be pushed hard throughout the coming week, for both squads are faced by the necessity of replacing several veterans lost by graduation last June.

Carnegie Tech will not get under way till the latter part of the month, but must still look to stiff preparatory periods, as the Tartans, and the Panthers, too, for that matter, have thus far been unable to get out-of-doors on clay courts.

SQUASH FINAL TODAY

The last gasp of the squash racquets campaign is slated for today, when Dr. Dave O'Loughlin and Bill Hutchins clash at 3 o'clock for the P. A. A. intramural title on the Winged Head gallery court. Hutchins, sporting a two-point advantage, nosed out O'Loughlin in the Red and Gray handicap wind-up nearly a month ago and the return contest will surely draw capacity throng.

Harry Kraeling won the P. A. A. club handball championship yesterday by defeating Al Bialas in the final match, 14-21, 21-14, 21-15.

GABRIEL OVER THE WHITE HOUSE

Anti-Hammond Forces Gain Strength After Election Date Is Set

Gabriel Over the White House

Adapted from the novel, "Gabriel Over the White House," and from the motion picture produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer—a Cosmopolitan production.

(CONTINUATION OF CHAPTER XII.)

Corp. Cassidy, who served in the Chicago police before he was transferred to the Green Jackets, had recently been detailed to special duty at St. Paul. On the evening of his arrival he visited a movie show with another Green Jacket. When the lights went up for an intermission Cassidy and his companion noticed two rather pretty girls sitting in the row in front of them, a little to their left. One was a blonde and the other dark haired.

The blonde flashed a flirtatious smile at the two Green Jackets, who grinned responsively. The other girl did not turn her head. Cassidy, a little piqued by her indifference, studied as much of her profile as he could see. His eyes, trained to details, instantly saw that the lobe of her right ear was slightly malformed, but it was his companion who remarked on another oddity.

"Say, Cassidy, that's a new one to me. Give the dark cutie the once over. D'ye notice anything phony about her hair? I've known dark janes who bleach out as blondes, but this dame fancies herself the other way round. Get an eyeful of the parting on the top of her head. If she ain't a yellow blonde who has dyed black, I'm nutty."

One glance at the girl's head showed the telltale streaks of gold beneath the black sheen of dye. Cassidy tried to change his position to see more of her face, but before he had succeeded the light went down for the next picture.

When they came on an hour later the girls had gone.

The next picture was dull and Cassidy's mind kept running on the girls. For some reason she had stirred dim memories in the background of his mind. That funny ear. Fair hair, dyed black. The deliberate averting of her face. Why had they gone out? The blonde seemed game enough for a little fun.

Girl Identified

He tried to visualize the original color of her hair. Had she been a red-head who hated it? She could hardly have wanted to change her hair if it had been golden. Cassidy liked golden hair. Golden . . . golden. Why did that strike a familiar chord? Golden hair. Torn lobe of right ear. Suddenly he remembered. Two years before when he was a Chicago cop. A row in Bannister's Speakeasy. Two blondes scrapping like hells-cats. What were they fighting about? . . . That was it . . . some earrings one of the girls was wearing. When he got them apart the tall one was bleeding from where the other had torn the thing clean out of her right ear. Yes, that was the girl, all right . . . What the devil was her name? . . . Something Jewish . . . Ratch . . . . No—Rose something—Rosenstein? . . . No—Rosenbaum, that was it. Mary Rosenbaum. . . "Goldie" she was called. "Golden Mary Rosenbaum, who was supposed to have perished more than a year before in the fire at "Wolf" Miller's place at Cicero!

When Cassidy returned to headquarters he reported his discovery to Brody, and they turned up some old descriptions and photograph. Cassidy's memory had not failed him; it was beyond doubt Mary Rosenbaum.

If she had escaped it was possible that "Wolf" Miller had got away, too. Then he must be still at large?

I arranged for Cassidy to find the girl and bring her in. His failure to do so was to have a result that shook the nation a few months later.

Radical Reforms

President Hammond was thoroughly aware of the growing unrest throughout the country over the continued suspension of Congress in open defiance of the Constitution. Three years ago such a drastic step at Washington had been accepted by a harassed people who were ready to believe that it was the only possible way of meeting a national emergency. But time and returning prosperity had blunted the sense of emergency in the popular mind which was now pining for a return of the "good old days."

The President, however, was determined that the administrative gains of the last three years should not be merely temporary. Not if he could help it was the United States to slide back into the political ooze and slime of an earlier era. As long as he was in the White House he apparently felt that there would be no retrogression. But then he would not last forever. Progress achieved under him must be consolidated and made permanent for his successor. As an administrator he had never used anything stronger than his tongue to gain his own will. A weaker man in the Presidency, he feared, might succumb to the constant temptation of calling out the Army and gagging the opposition press.

Therefore, shortly after the signing of the Washington covenant, the President set about embodying within the Constitution the radical reforms of his administration. Experts at the Department of Justice prepared 16 constitutional amendments to bring that charter up to date with existing conditions.

The power of the President was greatly augmented. The council of state was to be legitimatized. Government operation of the liquor trade was to be given constitutional sanction. The police of the nation was to remain federalized.

National Election

Congress was to sit only at the call of the President, and Cabinet members were to have the non-voting privilege of its floors. Proportional representation was to be established so that every last vote in the country would carry national weight.

For days the President shut himself up in the White House going over the drafts of these momentous amendments. When he had revised them to his liking he dramatically announced that he would decree a national election—the first in more than three years — for the second Tuesday of the following January. At that time the people would choose a President, for another six years, who would be ineligible to succeed himself.

Likewise a Congress would be selected to receive the 16 proposed amendments to the Constitution and submit them, not to the State Legislatures, but to popular conventions called in each state.

If and when the amendments were adopted, the States would then be free to hold elections to act upon revisions of their own Constitutions, select new Governors and otherwise re-establish local self-government.

Though the President did not say so specifically, it was generally assumed that he would be a candidate for re-election. This assumption became a conviction when he again ordered a nation-wide television hookup with which to explain to the people his purpose in proposing the new amendments to the Constitution. It quickly became clear that the election would resolve itself into a referendum on the Hammond Administration and the broad proposition of incorporating its basic principles in the law of the land.

It was at this point that Jasper Brooks and his Liberty Leaguers came to the fore as a formal party of opposition to the Hammond theory of democracy. They accepted the constitutional reforms as a challenge and as an issue on which to go to the people. They drew their strength from old-line politicians—bosses and their heelers—whose profession and livelihood had practically evaporated.

Opposition Grows

They were joined by professional libertarians who could see only benevolent tyranny in Hammond's rule, by old-fashioned manufacturers who still mourned the passing of protective tariffs, by a number of financiers and bankers whose interests, they thought, had been adversely affected by the internationalization of gold.

Heretofore these heterogeneous factions had been forced to keep under cover so great was the personal popularity of the President. Now that an election had been ordered, they were free to come out of their burrows and make themselves and their ideas heard.

The fixing of the date of the election and the consequent administrative changes forced decisions on many of those who, like Peale Lindsey, were anxious to return to commercial life, or who felt that the time had come to exchange the feverish existence of Washington for the calm and leisure of retirement.

It would mean many hard separations for me. Pendie and Peale would be living in New York, and Van Rassaeler had accepted a position as president of a bank.

My solace would have to be in work. Colonel Hazlett was expected to succeed Peale as Secretary of Public Safety, and it was more than likely I should be offered the post of Commander-in-Chief of the Green Jackets. Despite this I viewed my future existence in Washington with a secret dread of empty days and a lurking pain in my heart.

Anti-Hammond organizations sprang up in every State and city like mushrooms. Controlled mainly by old-style politicians, to whom the arts of the platform, stunt publicity and underground activities were second nature, it was perhaps not so remarkable that a powerful and vociferous following was quickly mobilized for the Liberty Leaguers.

It was difficult to assess how deeply it would cut into the Hammond vote. Despite the admiration, almost veneration, of the overwhelming majority of the people for his leadership, it was natural that their enthusiasm should have waned with the passing of years.

He seemed to them such a remote, legendary figure.

Hammond's attitude to the election was extraordinary. He refused to show any interest in it whatever. For all it concerned him, it might not be taking place.

Preoccupied and overworked in adjusting and smoothing the thousand and one difficulties incident to the budgetary and currency problems he resolutely refused to be distracted by purely domestic matters or party politics.

Ignoring the united appeal of the cabinet, Hammond declined to resume his television talks to the people, which had been such a feature of his administration. Secretary of State John Garside made them in his place, and, with Peale running publicity, the whole burden and responsibility for the campaign was left to the cabinet. It was in excellent hands.

FIND GOLD LODE UNDER SHACK

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev., April 15. —(INS.)—Gold and silver ore that assays $500 a ton has been discovered under a miner's old abandoned house on the slopes of Mt. Davidson and western mining men today were keenly interested in further development of the spectacular new find.

In the bonanza days of the Comstock lode more than $700,000,000 in gold and silver was taken out, and the new strike was believed to be on a vein of the original Comstock strike.

A crew of unemployed miners hired to wreck old tumble-down shacks stumbled across samples of the ore. Oscar Lewis, mining company official, bought the site for $150.

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

CHAPTER XXII.

All of Sharlie's pleasure in the party was gone, and she began to wonder just how soon she could get away from it. The man named Norman talked a great deal and the very sound of his voice was hateful to her. Every time he called her "Miss Barnum" a sharp pang of guilt and self-disgust went through her. After all, she told herself, she might have taken Jones or Smith or some ordinary name instead of using the Barnums' name to conceal her identity from these people.

The man named Norman was just as cheap and flashy looking as Al Green and Caddy, in spite of his well made white flannel suit and his pink, carefully groomed look.

"He's as vain as a chorus man," she summed him up to herself with her new knowledge of the world and of people, "and he's a cheap sport in spite of his big car and his good clothes. If he weren't he wouldn't be here with these people—"

"I'm sick of it," she said to herself. And in addition to her feeling of disgust, she had begun to feel sick to her stomach. The warmy beery smell of the kitchen made her suddenly remember the dirty, untidy rooms of Eddie's flat. They had had this same stale odor.

"I'm going, Marjorie," she said, and the others all turned their heads to stare at her in astonishment.

OFFERED RIDE HOME

"Going, honey? Why you're not going! You're not going to break up my party, are you?" Marjorie followed her as she walked out of the kitchen and into the little bedroom. "What's the matter with you? Feeling sick? Want to lie down on my bed for a few minutes?"

"No. I'll be all right as soon as I get some fresh air." Sharlie shook her head and began to pick up her hat and handbag from the bed. "You go back and eat your supper. I'll just 'phone for a cab."

"Indeed you won't. You don't think I'd let you drive away from here alone in a taxicab at this hour of the night, do you?" Marjorie cut in. "If you insist on going, I'll have Norman drive you home. He's sober, and that's more than I can say for Al and Caddy ——" And before Sharlie could object she was on her way to the kitchen.

She came back in a moment, bringing Norman with her. He was still chewing and he held the remains of a sandwich in one hand.

"Drive you home," he said shortly, wiping his mouth with his handkerchief. "Where d'you live?"

"Halstead street."

Sharlie saw him start a little at that. But all he said was, "All right. Come along."

NORMAN SURPRISED

Halfway down the first flight of the stairs he called over his shoulder to Marjorie and told her he'd be back in 20 minutes.

The night air of Fifth street seemed very clean and cool after Marjorie's apartment, and Sharley felt better after four or five great deep breaths of it.

"Halstead Street," Norman said as he helped her into his roadster. "What number, sister?"

"I'll show you the place when we get there. You can't see the numbers at night. It's an apartment house," Sharlie replied. "You know where Halstead Street is."

"I'll say I do," the man said, as if she had asked him a question.

He did not speak again until they swung into it from the north end, and neither did Sharlie. She sat huddled in her corner of the wide leather seat, wondering whether she ought to tell the man beside her that Dodie was her mother and ask him not to see her any more.

The car was almost at her door now. "Stop right here, at this next apartment house, please," she said, sharply, and it came to a sliding stop at the curb.

"You live in this place?" Norman asked. His tone was as sharp as hers had been. "You live here?"

"I live right up there, where the lights are," she said, getting out of the car. Her eyes were on a level with the eyes of the man in the car. "I think you've been up there with Mrs. Hanaberry, haven't you? It's my mother's apartment." She brought out the last four words in a little breathless rush. It was hard to speak of her mother to this man, who probably classed her with women like Marjorie and Maud Hanaberry.

HURRIES AWAY

"Your mother's apartment?" He couldn't seem to take in what she had just told him. His eyes swept up to the lighted windows and back again to her. "She's not your mother . . . Mrs. Dunn's not your mother."

Once more Sharlie nodded her head.

"But your name isn't Dunn ——"

"Yes, it is," said Sharlie. "And that's my mother that you know." She paused for a second, realizing that she was doing this thing very awkwardly. "I saw you here one night, and so I knew who you were when you came into Marjorie's flat a while ago——"

She paused again and then finished what she had to say quickly: "I think you ought to stick to people like Marjorie when you want to step out and have a good time. You see, my mother's never known anyone like you and she's thinking of getting a divorce. She takes you seriously."

"Don't I know it!" the man broke in. He closed the door of the car and the motor roared as he stepped on the gas. "Don't worry about her any more, sister." And without saying good night he drove away down Halstead street.

* * *

The little living room of the flat gave silent proof that Dodie had expected him there that evening. There were fresh flowers on the mantlepiece, and on the table in the middle of the room was a large box of cigarets untouched. The table in the dining room had been set for two people. It was covered with Dodie's one and only lace tablecloth and on it was a bowl of yellow daisies. There were celery and olives and a big platter of cold chicken and potato chips on the sideboard.

DODIE DISAPPOINTED

"And dad's money paid for all of it," Sharlie thought bitterly.

Her mother was sitting up in bed, reading. She was red-eyed and pale, even in the pink glow of her bed lamp. There was cold cream on her face and there were traces of tears on it, too.

"Where have you been Sharlie? It's terribly late," she said when Sharlie put her head around the corner of the door of her room.

"You told me to go out for the evening, didn't you?" asked Sharlie, instantly on the defensive. "You told me you were going to have company—"

"Company didn't come," said Dodie. "I've been sitting here in bed for hours waiting for you. Edna telephoned and asked for you, so I knew you weren't with her. And I telephoned your grandmother and found out that you weren't there. Where have you been?"

"I was at Marjorie Milliken's," answered Sharlie very simply, just as if she were saying she had been at Gertrude Barnum's.

"And who on earth is Marjorie Milliken?"

"Oh, I don't know. She's—just Marjorie Milliken," said Sharlie. For an instant she was tempted to tell Dodie all about Marjorie's flat and how she had met the Norman man there—"the man in the case," as Dodie had called him.

"No," she decided. "I'll let her find out all about him herself." She felt pretty sure that the Norman affair was at an end. His type of man did not run after women with grown daughters, just as Dodie herself had pointed out that morning when she had asked Sharlie to keep out of his sight for a while.

"Go to bed, Sharlie," she said now. "Get your beauty sleep and let me have mine. I feel a hundred years old tonight."

Sharlie went to bed and lay awake for a long time thinking over the last few hours and praying that she never would see Caddy or Al Green or Norman or Marjorie again. They were a cheap crowd—cheaper and more common than Eddie Wallis ever had been—and she hoped that she was through with them for good.

Synopsis

Pretty Sharlie Dunn marries Eddie Wallis, youthful ruffian, following a night spent in Eddie's car when it ran out of gas. The same day Eddie is killed by an automobile. Sharlie's mother, Dodie, and Maud Hanaberry her friend, have gay parties while their husbands are away. Sharlie is sent to her grandmother's. One night, returning unexpectedly, Sharlie observes Dodie and Maud entertaining two men. Later, Dodie informs Sharlie she is going to leave her husband. That afternoon, Mr. Dunn and Mr. Hanaberry return and take their wives and "friends" by surprise. Both husbands leave home. Longing for a good time, Sharlie calls Caddy Dean, whom she met at a dance hall. She goes to a roadhouse with his friends. Returning home they stop at the apartment of Marjorie Milliken, Caddy's friend. While there, Dodie's friend, Norman, calls.

IONIC THEORY AND ELECTROLYSIS

An atom will be negatively charged by taking on an electron, and positively by losing one. Atoms or groups of atoms with electric charge are the ions. By electrolysis the cathode attracts the positively charged atoms (cations: hydrogen and metals), furnishes the missing electrons to restore the neutral atom; the anode attracts the negatively charged atoms (anions: acid radicals), which give up their excess electrons. These are sent back through the wire to the source of electricity. Showing electrolysis of copper chloride: Cu Cl 2=Cu ++ (cupric ion) + 2 Cl— (chloride ion); Cu++ + 2 electrons = Cu (atom) at cathode. 2 Cl=2 electrons=2 Cl (atoms) at anode. (Foster: Elements of Chemistry.) (Chemistry.)

After an Old Cut

RICHARD COEUR de LION HAVING SARACENS BEHEADED

A scene from the Third Crusade (1190). Richard Coeur de Lion had set out to recover Palestine from the Mohammedans. Many nobles, princes and even kings joined him. The result was a truce with Saladin, according to which Richard, by promising peace for three years, kept Jaffa, Tyre and the fortresses along the coast, together with the privilege for pilgrims to visit the Holy Sepulcher unmolested. ARTICHOKE (Foods)

"Globe" or "French" artichoke supplies vitamins A and B and carbohydrates in amount similar to young peas, besides other nutrients. It is rather lately introduced in this country and not to be confused with the Jerusalem artichoke, a tuber. The base of leaves and the heart are edible, so they should be thick. The artichoke needs about 20-30 minutes boiling and is served with drawn butter or hollandaise sauce.

RIGHT ASCENSION, DECLINATION, CO-ORDINATES IN EQUATOR SYSTEM

The intersection of the celestial sphere and earth's equatorial plane (e q) is the celestial equator (E Q) (left); that of a meridian's plane is an hour circle; and those of the earth's axis (n s) are the celestial poles (N S). Parallel circles to the celestial equator (right) are the parallels of declination (B D). The apparent path of the sun (F G) is the "Ecliptic." Its meeting point with the cel. equ. (south to north) V is the "vernal equinox" (spring starts in North. Hemisphere); H is the autumnal equinox. Their hour circle (V N H S) is the zero one. Its angle with any other hour circle eastward is the "right ascension." The angular distance from the equator north (+) or south (—) is the declination. Example: Star C has 15° right ascension and +40° declination. (Science.)

LOUIS IX OF FRANCE STARTING CRUSADE

This was the seventh; Louis, taken captive, released through heavy ransom, continued his crusade known as the eighth, and died en route to the Holy Land. The Crusades, barren of result, cost greatly in life. Palestine, except briefly, was not recovered from the Moslems. (World's History.)

"It's an Ill Wind—"

Bugs Baer

Sure Sign of Spring

Unless something has happened since we have been out to lunch it looks as if the general world trend is toward peace.

Nations eventually get tired of clawing and pulling like wildcats on parole.

The natural attitude of man toward his neighbor is one of gentleness and skipped dividends. During the long winters we are hermetically sealed behind weatherproofed shingles and storm doors.

The real test arrives with May and June when the windows are open to snatch the furtive breeze and we can hear what our neighbors are talking about.

It is usually about us. Sometimes, that delightful topic of sarcasm is broke up by a small, intimate quarrel among themselves.

But 99 per cent out of the hundred, neighbors spend the happy summer hours, diagnozing their friends and hoping it is worse.

Things go along beautifully in the springlike suburbs until somebody hears something on the four-party telephone or that first empty tomato can comes sailing through the air to nestle among your ever-blooming, hardy, perennial nasturtiums.

That's the overt act that launches the miniature holocaust and the street instantaneously splits up into two sides and 16 cliques. We remember the petty details of the bridge games, the barn dance and the strawberry festival.

Where people have little to do there is plenty to talk about. All we can do to appease the oral reprisals is to caution you that summer is here and the windows are open.

It's that way all over the world. And it is the same with nations as with individuals. So modulate your rural howls and talk gently. It may not be polite to whisper but it is often much nicer.

The opening of the thousand windows in our apartment house means nothing in the general trend of things. For Amos and Andy drown out everybody.

And that's how we know the windows are open. When we can hear Amos and Andy echoing from the chimneys, sounding from the curb and reverberating through the carpeted valleys we know that spring is here.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

SATURDAY, APRIL 15, 1933

No Excuse for It

The New Plan for Judicial Elections Should Be Defeated—Comment on Local News.

*The Republican machine now controlled by Sen*ator James J. Coyne placed most of the Allegheny County judges on the bench, and seeks to keep them there. That seems obviously the motive for the introduction of a bill in the Legislature under Coyne's sponsorship, requiring candidates for the bench to indicate to which particular judge's place they seek election.

The plan would discourage competent attorneys from aspiring to the bench; they would be unwilling to run because of the risk of offending the judge whose job they sought. The present system is better from the standpoint of the public, too. There is no excuse for the proposed change, and it should be voted down.

*Another bad bill that should be killed is the Wil*son measure with its threat to the public school system. The bill authorizes the Superintendent of Public Instruction to suspend any provisions of the school code in the interest of economy. Pittsburgh school teachers and civic workers rightly protest against this. There is power for harm in the granting of such autocratic authority.

*Apropos of the attempt that is being made to re*duce the appropriations for public education, a prominent Pittsburgh Catholic calls attention to the fact that school expenses are low in comparison with what they would be if his church did not assume a large part of the burden. The figures that he gives are impressive.

*The gentleman writes that there are 41,500 chil*dren in the 86 parochial schools in the city, and that as it costs about $107 a year to educate a child, the Catholics are saving the taxpayers of the city about $4,500,000 a year. The addition of this amount to the city's school budget would give the taxpayers a staggering load to carry.

*The Catholics, he says, are glad to save the tax*payers this money, and adds that it might help the taxpayers to bear the burden of school taxes if attention should be called from time to time to the Catholics' contribution, "not in any controversial way, nor with any thought of repayment, but merely as a part of the history of the day, to be recorded in the columns of your paper."

A parade and mass meeting are to be held tonight under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Building Trades Council and the Fraternal Order of Eagles as a demonstration of the popular demand for action by the Legislature on the old age pension and mother's assistance bills. The measures provide for a constitutional amendment which must be ratified by the people. They should be given an opportunity to vote on it.

Mayor John S. Herron has called on the people of Pittsburgh by proclamation to observe Sunday, April 30, as President's Day, by praying for spiritual guidance and support for President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his difficult task. All that is needed now to make this an impressive occasion is cooperation from the minister of every church. It is to be assumed this will be forthcoming.

Atlantic City on Easter Sunday is a gay place. It would be pleasant to be there tomorrow. But no one need regret having to spend Easter in Pittsburgh if the weather should be as delightful as it was yesterday. With a bright day we shall see a parade of Easter finery that will gladden the eyes of all who appreciate elegance and modishness in wearing apparel.

Easter clothing purchases have improved business in many Pittsburgh retail shops during the past week, Dun and Bradstreet's report "a rebound in steel operations" which is viewed as "a reflection of the more rapid stride which general commercial activity is moving." It is appropriate that signs of better times should manifest themselves at Eastertide.

The highway safety committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club calls attention to the fact that spring weather is luring children into the streets, and reminds motorists never to assume that a child is going to keep out of the way. Wise parents will not let tots play on highways over which automobiles are passing. Three hundred and forty children were killed by autos in Pennsylvania last year.

The trout season opened today, and during the next few months thousands of Pittsburghers will take a day or two from their work to enjoy themselves on Pennsylvania's mountain streams. Such outings are well worth while, even if no fish are caught. The city man will find nothing more refreshing than to spend a few hours in the open, communing with Nature.

*For those who do not find it convenient to go fish*ing, gardening is recommended. Wonders can be accomplished with a little patch of ground in the back yard. Mayor John S. Herron has issued the usual proclamation establishing daylight saving on April 30. Those long hours of evening daylight can be employed profitably in cultivating vegetables and flowers.

*The Sewickley Audubon Society will make a jour*ney tomorrow to Big Traverse Creek to see the spring birds. Here is another recreation worth anyone's while. The migratory birds are now advancing northward from the warm countries where they spent the winter. Put up some bird houses on your premises, and many of these migrants will stay with you through the summer.

The visit of Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome to the tomb, where they found a young man clothed in a long white garment, who told them the Lord was risen, is pictured in the frontispiece of the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It is a beautiful picture and suitable for framing.

Beautiful, also, is the picture in full color of Echo and Narcissus which adorns the cover of the American Weekly, issued as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. One of the interesting articles discusses the case of Mme. Vlora, the international spy who was found mysteriously poisoned on the steps of England's cenotaph to its war dead.

Income Tax Folly

(Copyright, 1933.)

Since 1929 Federal income tax rates have gone up—and the return to the Federal Treasury has gone steadily down.

Note the actual returns to Uncle Sam: Collections of $2,410,986,977 in 1930, then down to $1,860,394,295 in 1931 and $1,057,335,853 in 1932.

This fiscal year is not complete. But with the oppressive "soak-the-rich" rates in full effect, only $567,825,557 had been taken in up to April 6—and the year closes on June 30.

The 1933 collections will be perhaps about one-fourth of the 1930 total, when the rate was lower.

The burden falls almost entirely upon the small taxpayer with his hard-earned income. The wealth that Uncle Sam wants to tax escapes into tax-exempt securities.

The cure for this evil is to abolish the inequitable and iniquitous income tax system and to substitute a General Manufacturers' Sales Tax.

Precious Relics Found At Nagarjundakonda

Whatever Makes Others Happy Should Be Treated Reverently.

In the Madras Presidency, India, at Nagarjundakonda, important archeological discoveries have been made. They include rich carvings, showing the birth of Gautama, called by his religious followers the Buddha, a prince of India, who founded a great religion. It has more followers on earth than Christianity.

Reincarnations of the Buddha are supposed to have been born from time to time. And each reincarnation of the god, as soon as it was born, sat in the air without any support and delivered a sermon. The fortunate woman chosen to be mother of the Buddha entered at once into Nirvana, the Buddhist idea of heaven which would not tempt the average Christian.

In the upper picture there is shown (No. 1) a piece of bone of the first great god Buddha, originally Prince Gautama, who suddenly had remorse, left his father's palace, left his young wife, new-born baby and all his dancing girls, and went out to save the world.

He met a tigress, so hungry that she had no milk for her cubs, and immediately allowed the tigress to eat him, that she might have milk. He came back to life, of course, had many adventures, and sat under a tree with his legs crossed, in meditation, a great deal of the time, teaching disciples that came to him.

The small piece of bone from his skeleton is revered by millions, deeply religious. The little receptacle numbered two is a gold box in which the small bone was found. Number three is a reproduction of the silver casket which contained the gold box.

The lower picture shows the temple built long ago to hold this piece of sacred bone. The temple has fallen into ruins, and has only recently been excavated. It will now be reconstructed.

To those that do not believe in Buddhism worship of this small piece of bone may seem ridiculous. But all should respect it, and respect every religion and religious conviction.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 15.—Because this letter is from an extremely worldly gentleman and authentic it seems auspiciously interesting these times: "Perhaps a few wavering agnostics might be interested in knowing why I'm suddenly attending church. It is not necessary to mention the denomination.

"I was not caught up by any religious frenzy or emotionalism. I merely dropped into church one evening because I had no place in particular to go and was a bit blue. I expected to nod through the services and did. I left when the organ played an exit tune, and dropped into a speak-easy.

"So far as I recall I do not remember any part of the services. My only impression was that it was about the most restful place I had encountered during the past stormy three years. I have been quite fortunate. As you know you have met me here and there and in Europe as a rather highflyer.

"I have occupied a penthouse and was host to the customary crowd of after theater drink cadgers. Also I have been escort for a number of stage and screen beauties. Indeed, I was once engaged to a movie star. Due to a far-seeing father I have an income although I was nipped in the market.

* * *

"There have not been many mornings in the past 10 years I have not awakened in a slight fog. I rarely became drunk, but by bed time I usually had an edge. My constitution stood it better than most. For some time I have been fed up. No man can drink steadily without collecting a lot of shady companions. I was the victim of several shakedowns.

* * *

"I noticed that most fair weather friends bored me unless I had several drinks. But the mellower I grew the more I thought they were the best fellows in the world. The next day I would realize popularity was due to my paying the checks. Still I would go back to them. I have looked upon the church as a sort of haven for frustrated nit-wits, seeking something they could not find. I was impressed and swayed by the writings of Robert Ingersoll.

* * *

"Anyway, that casual evening visit to church kept knocking around in my mind. I wanted to go in again. Several Sunday mornings I got up to attend services, but was diverted by such inconsequentials as a headache, reading the morning papers or answering telephone calls. Finally I got around to it. I recall hoping, upon leaving, that I would not be seen by anyone I knew. But I was and by a mutual drinking companion who to my amazement commented: 'You have been some place I've been wanting to go for some time.' He seemed to eye me with new respect.

* * *

"In my case there has been no regeneration. I have not given up my nightcap or occasional cocktail. I still smoke and exchange a Pullman story. But I've been going to church regularly for five months, meeting people one never sees in the flash crowd with which I hobnobbed. They have a forthright wholesomeness I rather thought had gone out. They stand for things, say what you will, that have made this nation endure. One pastor has even had dinner with me. We played a game of chess and afterward talked until midnight. I might add he did not once mention his calling — something one cannot say for show folk, financiers, artists and writers.

* * *

"I do not expect to become religious. My materialism is, I fear, too deeply ingrained. But here is the thing that impresses. It has been gossiped I am attending church. Several have intimated they would like to go with me. Others I knew in night clubs and unsavory places also expressed a curiosity. I am wondering if it is the slight undercurrent of a spiritual awakening. Has the misery of the times turned people from the husks?

* * *

"Maybe it will be different if and when prosperity returns. I am just one of those burnt-out boys who, having had my fling, selfishly wants others to settle down, too. But my honest conviction is that humanity is drifting toward things more worth while. I believe the world is emerging out of its conglomerate woe to something that is going to be, in the language of the circus posters, bigger and better. And, fellow, it is about time! Drop in on me some evening. We can have a high old time rocking ourselves silly and meditating on the blessed promises. After all, I've done everything else and haven't had so much fun."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Some people are born with tails. Not long curly tails like Fido's, but a small elongation of the spine which would have speedily developed into an ample tail had they been born some millions of years ago.

These tiny, twentieth century tails are really hang-overs from our savage great-grandfather's equipment. We do not know exactly what those first great-grandfathers were like but we do know that they were nearer to the ape in body and mind than we are. The proportions of their bodies were different. They had longer and more powerful arms, they had shorter legs, heavier torsos. They could grip with their toes as a monkey grips, and they exercised certain muscles and organs of which we have the now useless remnants.

Our useless tails are merely a reminder of bodies we have long since outgrown. If we understood their significance they may keep us humble, but otherwise they do not bother us very much. They do not bother us nearly so much as some other hang-overs which we drag through life with us.

Most of us enter adult life with hang-overs which are infinitely more mischievous than an extra inch or two of spine. Emotional hang-overs—attitudes and ideas which we should have shed with our baby teeth. And because of this, we prolong through life problems and confusions which should have been settled before we were twenty-five.

During the first 20 or 25 years of life we should get our bearings. We should come to understand and should establish our proper relationship to society.

Children have no idea of their proper relationship to society. They hardly know that the rest of the world exists. They have the viewpoint of animals and savages. They think of themselves. They are the slaves of their own feelings.

Such egotism is natural and right in children; it is necessary for their growth. But it should pass with childhood. Gradually the child's viewpoint should broaden until he sees and feels other needs besides his own; until he is able to bear disappointment and loneliness and irritation and loss as a grown man.

But some people never acquire grown-up minds. Their bodies mature, but their minds remain unripe. They enter life as some babies enter life, with hang-over tails—silly, waggy tails of the emotion.

They still fly into rages if they are thwarted.

They boast and strut like children.

They are governed by unreasonable fears and prejudices.

They cling feverishly to love as a child clings to its mother's apron.

They clamor for happiness and refuse to do their work properly if it is denied them.

All these are the reactions of children. They are hang-overs from baby attitudes. They are, if we could but realize it, as silly as human tails.

"Infantilism," psychoanalysts call such hang-overs.

Critics say that we Americans, as a race, suffer from infantilism.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM IT?

I do. That's why I can write such a mean article about it.

THE MID-VICTORIAN

By Winifred Black

"Mid-Victorian—Yes, yes, that's what I am! And I am proud of it!

"It may not be anything so grand, but it is certainly better than ultra-modern—if you don't think so just stop talking a minute and do a little reckoning.

"Mid-Victorian times—that's when women wore basques and bangled bracelets and bangs and spit curls and striped stockings with the stripes running round and round.

"That's when young men went to the barbers and got a special shave and a special hair cut and tied a red ribbon to their buggy whips and got out the red wheeled buggy and took the best girl for a ride along about 5 o'clock Sunday evening.

"And if the young man was the sort of young man the best girl's mother approved he went home and had Sunday night supper with the best girl. Cold fried chicken and cherry pie and some doughnuts and maybe three or four kinds of cookies and all the good strong coffee he could drink, and then when the 8 o'clock bell began to ring the young man and his best girl went to evening service.

"And the smell of the syringas and the lilacs came through the open windows and the pale moon silvered the little village street with glory. And the young man had a terrible time trying to tell his best girl that he loved her and asking her to tell him if she couldn't manage to try to like him just a little, even if he wasn't worthy to tie the strings of her foolish little shoes.

"Yes, that's what they did—those mid-Victorians.

"No. Hello, Kid, let's do the wedding march, how about it?'

"No terrified males running like rabbits to get away from the dangerous females. And it took a real man to drive a high-stepping horse and make love to his best girl and keep from knocking her wide-brimmed hat off into the road, or so they used to say.

"Church sociables, oyster suppers, sleigh rides with the boys and girls singing 'Jingle Bells,' and the driver beating his arms like flails to keep from freezing.

"No Broadway wisecracks, no crooners, dear me, how dull things were.

"But wait a minute—Dickens, Thackeray, Bret Harte, Mark Twain, Rudyard Kipling, Swinburne, Edgar Allan Poe—not so dull—eh what?

"And in the world of music Patti, Schumann-Heink, De Reszke, Paderewski, not to mention Mendelssohn, Mozart, Schubert and Schumann.

"They played them all—the mid-Victorians.

"Abraham Lincoln, Gladstone, Bismarck, Disraeli—rather tall fellows, weren't they?"

And when I was through listening to the mid-Victorian I didn't seem to have a single word to say—what would you have answered her?

NEW YORK, April 15.—A musical comedy opened in a nearby town recently and was a flop from the start. The backer of the play was complaining about all the money he was losing.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are many things that you might do around your home that would improve it, old man.

You are not as inefficient or as helpless as you would have it appear.

You don't like "puttering" about the house or the grounds.

Therefore, you don't try to make desirable changes, but balk at the simplest things.

Instead, you pay to have it done or let it go undone.

You are fond of making the excuse that in your school days there was no manual training department.

You fail to mention that your father could and did use his tool chest to advantage while you shirked or went fishing.

If your wife were asked, she might say that there was no domestic science department in her school, but she never has been able to get away with it as far as cooking for the family is concerned, and you know she is a fine cook.

Disposition to learn is the principal thing.

If 60 per cent of the people are morons, as some claim, about 50 per cent lack the will and disposition to be known as efficient, except in getting out of work—so no sympathy for you, Mr. Man.
